The Making Of The Modern World Vol One Europe Discovers The World:

The Making of the Modern World: Europe discovers the world Douglas Johnson, 1971 Black Marxism Cedric J. Robinson, 2005-10-12 In this ambitious work first published in 1983 Cedric Robinson demonstrates that efforts to understand black people's history of resistance solely through the prism of Marxist theory are incomplete and inaccurate Marxist analyses tend to presuppose European models of history and experience that downplay the significance of black people and black communities as agents of change and resistance Black radicalism must be linked to the traditions of Africa and the unique experiences of blacks on western continents Robinson argues and any analyses of African American history need to acknowledge this To illustrate his argument Robinson traces the emergence of Marxist ideology in Europe the resistance by blacks in historically oppressive environments and the influence of both of these traditions on such important twentieth century black radical thinkers as W E B Du Bois C L R James and Richard Wright Black Marxism, Revised and Updated Third Edition Cedric J. Robinson, 2020-12-16 In this ambitious work first published in 1983 Cedric Robinson demonstrates that efforts to understand Black people's history of resistance solely through the prism of Marxist theory are incomplete and inaccurate Marxist analyses tend to presuppose European models of history and experience that downplay the significance of Black people and Black communities as agents of change and resistance Black radicalism Robinson argues must be linked to the traditions of Africa and the unique experiences of Blacks on Western continents and any analyses of African American history need to acknowledge this To illustrate his argument Robinson traces the emergence of Marxist ideology in Europe the resistance by Blacks in historically oppressive environments and the influence of both of these traditions on such important twentieth century Black radical thinkers as W E B Du Bois C L R James and Richard Wright This revised and updated third edition includes a new preface by Tiffany Willoughby Herard and a new foreword by Robin D G Kelley How Europe Made the Modern World Jonathan Daly, 2019-10-03 One thousand years ago a traveler to Baghdad or the Chinese capital Kaifeng would have discovered a vast and flourishing city of broad streets spacious gardens and sophisticated urban amenities meanwhile Paris Rome and London were cramped and unhygienic collections of villages and Europe was a backwater How then did it rise to world preeminence over the next several centuries This is the central historical conundrum of modern times How Europe Made the Modern World draws upon the latest scholarship dealing with the various aspects of the West's divergence including geography demography technology culture institutions science and economics It avoids the twin dangers of Eurocentrism and anti Westernism strongly emphasizing the contributions of other cultures of the world to the West's rise while rejecting the claim that there was nothing distinctive about Europe in the premodern period Daly provides a concise summary of the debate from both sides whilst also presenting his own provocative arguments Drawing on a wide range of primary and secondary sources and including maps and images to illuminate key evidence this book will inspire students to think critically and engage in debates rather than accepting a single narrative of the rise of the West It is an ideal

The Book Worlds of East Asia and Europe, 1450-1850 Joseph P. McDermott, Peter Burke, 2015-10-01 This volume provides the first comparative survey of the relations between the two most active book worlds in Eurasia between 1450 and 1850 Prominent scholars in book history explore different approaches to publishing printing and book culture They discuss the extent of technology transfer and book distribution between the two regions and show how much book historians of East Asia and Europe can learn from one another by raising new questions exploring remarkable similarities and differences in these regions production distribution and consumption of books The chapters in turn show different ways of writing transnational comparative history Whereas recent problems confronting research on European books can instruct researchers on East Asian book production so can the privileged role of noncommercial publications in the East Asian textual record highlight for historians of the European book the singular contribution of commercial printing and market demands to the making of the European printed record Likewise although production growth was accompanied in both regions by a wider distribution of books woodblock technology s simplicity and mobility allowed for a shift in China of its production and distribution sites farther down the hierarchy of urban sites than was common in Europe And the different demands and consumption practices within these two regions expanding markets led to different genre preferences and uses as well as to the growth of distinctive female readerships A substantial introduction pulls the work together and the volume ends with an essay that considers how these historical developments shape the present book worlds of Eurasia This splendid volume offers expert new insight into the ways of producing financing distributing and reading printed books in early modern Europe and East Asia This is comparative history at its best which leaves us with a better understanding of each context and of the challenges common to book cultures across space and time Ann Blair author of Too Much to Know Managing Scholarly Information before the

Modern Age and professor of history Harvard University This engrossing account of the history of the book by leading specialists on the European and East Asian publishing worlds takes stock of what we know and how much we still need to know about the places that books had in the lives of our early modern forebears Each chapter is masterful state of the field coverage of its subject and together they set a new standard for future studies of the book East and West Timothy Brook author of The Troubled Empire China in the Yuan and Ming Dynasties The Oxford Handbook of Early Modern European History, 1350-1750 Hamish Scott, 2015-07-23 This Handbook re examines the concept of early modern history in a European and global context The term early modern has been familiar especially in Anglophone scholarship for four decades and is securely established in teaching research and scholarly publishing More recently however the unity implied in the notion has fragmented while the usefulness and even the validity of the term and the historical periodisation which it incorporates have been questioned The Oxford Handbook of Early Modern European History 1350 1750 provides an account of the development of the subject during the past half century but primarily offers an integrated and comprehensive survey of present knowledge together with some suggestions as to how the field is developing It aims both to interrogate the notion of early modernity itself and to survey early modern Europe as an established field of study The overriding aim will be to establish that early modern is not simply a chronological label but possesses a substantive integrity Volume II is devoted to Cultures and Power opening with chapters on philosophy science art and architecture music and the Enlightenment Subsequent sections examine Europe beyond Europe with the transformation of contact with other continents during the first global age and military and political developments notably the expansion of state power The New Middle East ,1970

The Venetian Discovery of America Elizabeth Horodowich, 2018-09-06 Few Renaissance Venetians saw the New World with their own eyes As the print capital of early modern Europe however Venice developed a unique relationship to the Americas Venetian editors mapmakers translators writers and cosmographers represented the New World at times as a place that the city's mariners had discovered before the Spanish a world linked to Marco Polo's China or another version of Venice especially in the case of Tenochtitlan Elizabeth Horodowich explores these various and distinctive modes of imagining the New World including Venetian rhetorics of firstness similitude othering comparison and simultaneity generated through forms of textual and visual pastiche that linked the wider world to the Venetian lagoon These wide ranging stances allowed Venetians to argue for their different but equivalent participation in the Age of Encounters Whereas historians have traditionally focused on the Spanish conquest and colonization of the New World and the Dutch and English mapping of it they have ignored the wide circulation of Venetian Americana Horodowich demonstrates how with their printed texts and maps Venetian newsmongers embraced a fertile tension between the distant and the close In doing so they played a crucial yet heretofore unrecognized role in the invention of America The Palgrave Handbook on Decoloniality in Asia Phoebe Zoe Maria U. Sanchez, Regletto Aldrich D. Imbong, Matthew Ming-tak Chew, Caroline M. Schöpf, 2025-05-02 This

Handbook brings together a plethora of decolonial perspectives from and about Asian countries beyond Southeast Asia Complementing existing scholarship on decolonisation in Latin America and Africa emerging and established scholars from the Global North and the Global South cover politically urgent vital and underexplored topics from the social sciences and humanities An important compendium more than 25 original contributions bring debates happening in various parts of the world strongly into conversation with similar debates in the West where there has been little reciprocal exchange Bringing to the fore the importance of a paradigm shift within academia this first of its kind Handbook is useful for policy makers scholars and students of postcolonial and decolonial studies sociology development studies and social movements
