Speak Now Against The Day John Egerton, 2013-08-28 Speak Now Against the Day is the astonishing little known story of the Southerners who in the generation before the Supreme Court outlawed school segregation and before Rosa Parks refused to surrender her seat on a Montgomery bus challenged the validity of a white ruling class and a separate but equal division of the races. The voices of the dissenters although present throughout the South's troubled history grew louder with Roosevelt's election in 1932. An increasing number of men and women who grappled daily with the economic and social woes of the South began forcefully and courageously to speak and to work toward the day when the South and the nation would deliver on the historic promises in the country's founding documents. This is the story of those brave prophets, the ministers, writers, educators, journalists, social activists, union members, and politicians, black and white, who pointed the way to higher ground. Published forty years after the Brown v. Board of Education ruling of the Supreme Court, this compelling book is not only a rich trove of forgotten history; it also speaks profoundly to us in the context of today's continuing racial and social conflict.

Covering for the Bosses Joseph B. Atkins, 2008 Covering for the Bosses Labor and the Southern Press probes the difficult relationship between the press and organized labor in the South from the past to the present day. Written by a veteran journalist and first hand observer of the labor movement and its treatment in the region's newspapers and other media, the text focuses on the modern South that has evolved since World War II. In gathering materials for this book, Joseph B. Atkins crisscrossed the region interviewing workers, managers, labor organizers, immigrants, activists, and journalists and canvassing labor archives. Using individual events to reveal the broad picture, Covering for the Bosses is a personal journey by a textile worker's son who grew up in North Carolina, worked on tobacco farms and in textile plants as a young man, and went on to cover as a reporter many of the developments described in this book. Atkins details the fall of the once dominant textile industry and the region's emergence as the Sunbelt South. He explores the advent of Detroit South with the arrival of foreign automakers from Japan, Germany, and South Korea. And finally, he relates the effects of the influx of millions of workers from Mexico and elsewhere. Covering for the Bosses shows how, with few exceptions, the press has been a key partner in the powerful alliance of business and political interests that keep the South, the nation's least unionized region. Joseph B. Atkins is a widely published journalist, professor of journalism at the University of Mississippi, and editor of The Mission. Journalism Ethics and the World. Stanley Aronowitz is professor of sociology and cultural studies at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York. He is the author, most recently, of Left Turn: Forging a New Political Future. The Knowledge Factory and How Class Works.

Unexampled Courage Richard Gergel, 2024-03-26 How the blinding of Sergeant Isaac Woodard changed the course of America's civil rights history. The book that inspired the 2021 PBS American Experience documentary The Blinding of Isaac Woodard. On February 12, 1946, Sergeant Isaac Woodard, a returning decorated African American veteran, was removed from a Greyhound bus in Batesburg, South Carolina, after he challenged the bus driver's disrespectful treatment of him Woodard in uniform was arrested by the local police chief Lynwood Shull and beaten and blinded while in custody Outraged by the incident President Harry Truman established the first presidential commission on civil rights and his Justice Department filed criminal charges against Shull In July 1948 following his commission's recommendation Truman ordered an end to segregation in the U S armed forces An all white South Carolina jury acquitted Shull but the presiding judge J Waties Waring was conscience stricken by the failure of the court system to do justice by the soldier Waring described the trial as his baptism of fire and began issuing major civil rights decisions from his Charleston courtroom including his 1951 dissent in Briggs v Elliott declaring public school segregation per se unconstitutional Three years later the Supreme Court adopted Waring's language and reasoning in Brown v Board of Education An unprecedented historical investigation Richard Gergel's Unexampled Courage is a revealing window into both the hideous racial violence and humiliation of segregation and the heroic origin of the legal crusade to destroy Jim Crow The New York Times Book Review Christian Budget and News of the Day, 1891 Sidelines Activist Richard Robbins, 1996 Although Charles S Johnson 1893 1956 called himself a sidelines activist his advocacy for racial equality was never watered down or half hearted His strategy was to work indirectly sometimes behind the scenes to influence public policy and to mobilize groups with special concerns for the tragic plight of rural black sharecroppers In coalition with an embattled band of southern white liberals he pressed the federal government to end lynching the poll tax separate but equal schooling and other racial inequities of the Jim Crow era Throughout his career he played the vital role of building bridges between the races specifically in gaining white philanthropic support in conducting sociological research and in stimulating activism in the black community This is the first full length biography of Johnson Together with W E B Du Bois and E Franklin Frazier he has been defined as a founding father among contemporary black sociologists His career as a professional sociologist was only one aspect of a many sided life which took him from the small town of Bristol in southwest Virginia into the greater world of crisis and conflict In Chicago he conducted landmark research on the devastating race riot there in 1919 In Harlem in the twenties he directed research for the Urban League edited its journal Opportunity and functioned as entrepreneur of the Harlem Renaissance paving the way to publication for such writers as Langston Hughes and Zora Neale Hurston He returned to the South and Fisk University where for a quarter of a century he conducted research on the South's twin system of economic and racial exploitation Two of his books Shadow of the Plantation on the South's declining feudal cotton economy and Growing up in the Black Belt a study of black youth and its problems in the 1930s are recognized today as classics In the last ten years of his life Johnson served as the first black president of Fisk University one of the most important of the historically black colleges The Virginia Quarterly Review, 1997 One Against the World; Or, Reuben's War. Ward (Jr.),Thomas J. Ward,2003-10 In this comprehensive account Thomas J Ward examines the development of the African American medical profession in the South Under segregation the white medical profession provided inadequate service at best to African American patients Paradoxically African Americans could gain financial success and upward mobility by becoming doctors themselves Ward tracks the rise of African American medical schools professional organizations and hospitals He also explores the difficulties that African American physicians faced as an elite group within a subjugated caste and the many ways in which their education prestige and relative wealth put them at odds with the southern caste system Within the black community in turn this prestige often pushed doctors into the public sphere as business leaders civic spokesmen and political activists Drawing on a variety of sources from oral histories to the records of professional organizations this book illuminates the contradictions of race and class in the South and provides valuable new insight into class divisions within African American communities in the era of segregation
