Reading the World Mary Franklin-Brown,2024-05-31 The thirteenth century saw such a proliferation of new encyclopedic texts that more than one scholar has called it the century of the encyclopedias Variouslly referred to as a speculum thesaurus or imago mundi the term encyclopedia was not commonly applied to such books until the eighteenth century these texts were organized in such a way that a reader could easily locate a collection of authoritative statements on any given topic Because they reproduced rather than simply summarized parts of prior texts these compilations became libraries in miniature In this groundbreaking study Mary Franklin Brown examines writings in Latin Catalan and French that are connected to the encyclopedic movement Vincent of Beauvais's Speculum maius Ramon Llull's Libre de meravelles Arbor scientiae and Arbre de filosofia d amor and Jean de Meun's continuation of the Roman de la Rose Franklin Brown analyzes the order of knowledge in these challenging texts describing the wide ranging interests the textual practices including commentary compilation and organization and the diverse discourses that they absorb from preexisting classical patristic and medieval writing She also demonstrates how these encyclopedias like libraries became heterotopias of knowledge spaces where many possible ways of knowing are juxtaposed But Franklin Brown's study will not appeal only to historians she argues that a revised understanding of late medievalism makes it possible to discern a close connection between scholasticism and contemporary imaginative literature She shows how encyclopedists employed the same practices of figuration narrative and citation as poets and romanciers while much of the difficulty of the imaginative writing of this period derives from a juxtaposition of heterogeneous discourses inspired by encyclopedias With rich and innovative readings of texts both familiar and neglected Reading the World reveals how the study of encyclopedism can illuminate both the intellectual work and the imaginative writing of the scholastic age

Hermeneutics as a Theory of Understanding, Volume 1 Petr Pokorn,2011 Walk with Peter Pkorny in and around his beloved field of hermeneutics as he explores a number of basic issues in understanding from language in general to the interpretation of the Bible in particular Art and Institution Rajiv Kaushik,2011-06-12 Art and Institution examines how for Merleau Ponty the work of art opens up without conceptualizing the event of being Rajiv Kaushik treats Merleau Ponty's renderings of the artwork specifically in his later writings during the period ranging from 1952 1961 as a path into the being that precedes phenomenology Replete with references to Merleau Ponty's reflections on Matisse C zanne Proust and others and featuring Kaushik's own original reflections on various artworks this book is guided by the notion that art does not

iterate the findings of phenomenology so much as it allows phenomenology to finally discover what as a matter of principle it seeks the very foundation of experience that is not itself available to thought Kaushik is thus concerned with the ways in which the work of art restores the principle of institution prior to the intentional structures of consciousness so that phenomenology may settle questions concerning ontological difference the origination of significance and the relationship between interiority and exteriority Spenser's Narrative Figuration of Women in The Faerie Queene Judith H Anderson,2018-03-31 Concentrating on major figures of women in The Faerie Queene together with the figures constellated around them Anderson s Narrative Figuration explores the contribution of Spenser s epic romance to an appreciation of women s plights and possibilities in the age of Elizabeth Taken together their stories have a meaningful tale to tell about the function of narrative which proves central to figuration in the still moving metamorphic poem that Spenser created

Hyer,2025-04-22 Identifies and analyses a wide range of textile metaphors and imagery from peace weaving in Beowulf to word crafting in Elene Textile metaphors or metaphors involving the process and product of cloth making occur widely in literary traditions around the world The same phenomenon holds true among the peoples of early medieval England As close observers of a long and culturally significant textile tradition pre Conquest English writers drew upon their close familiarity with spinning and weaving to create a wide range of metaphorical textile images in both Old English and Anglo Latin literature This book examines early medieval English textile imagery in close detail situating it within its cultural and material contexts and addressing the ways in which lived experience informed these metaphors whether inherited invented or both It explores imagery linked to themes of creation peace death magic and fate in a comprehensive variety of texts including Beowulf and Elene Anglo Latin letters and riddles the Exeter Book riddles prognostics penitentials hagiographic and homiletic texts medical collections and glosses Overall it demonstrates how an understanding of this important body of textile metaphors alters and shapes the ways in which we read the literature of this period Reading the Allegorical

Intertext Judith H. Anderson,2010-12-01 Judith H Anderson conceives the intertext as a relation between or among texts that encompasses both Kristevan intertextuality and traditional relationships of influence imitation allusion and citation Like the Internet the intertext is a state or place of potential expressed in ways ranging from deliberate emulation to linguistic free play Relatedly the intertext is also a convenient fiction that enables examination of individual agency and sociocultural determinism Anderson s intertext is allegorical because Spenser s Faerie Queene is pivotal to her study and because allegory understood as continued or moving metaphor encapsulates even as it magnifies the process of signification Her title signals the variousness of an intertext extending from Chaucer through Shakespeare to Milton and the breadth of allegory itself Literary allegory in Anderson s view is at once a mimetic form and a psychic one a process thinking that combines mind with matter emblem with narrative abstraction with history Anderson s first section focuses on relations between Chaucer s Canterbury Tales and Spenser s The Faerie Queene including the role of the narrator the nature of the textual source the dynamics of influence and the bearing of allegorical narrative on lyric vision The second centers on agency and cultural influence in a variety of Spenserian and medieval texts Allegorical form a recurrent concern throughout becomes the pressing issue of section three This section treats plays and poems of Shakespeare and Milton and includes two intertextually relevant essays on Spenser How Paradise Lost or Shakespeare s plays participate in allegorical form is controversial Spenser s experiments with allegory revise its form and this intervention is largely what Shakespeare and Milton find in his poetry and develop Anderson's book the result of decades of teaching and writing about allegory especially Spenserian allegory will reorient thinking about fundamental critical issues and the landmark texts in which they play themselves out Bulletin
