Revolution in the Highlands Stephen C. Averill, 2006-11-06 This extensively researched and elegantly written study offers a fine grained analysis of the origins of the Chinese Communist Revolution in the countryside Building on decades of research in newly available sources and multiple trips to Jiangxi Stephen Averill provides a definitive local perspective on the rise of a revolution that reshaped China and the world A rich work of social history it goes beyond recently popular organizational approaches to explore the ways in which the party and social networks interpenetrated and interacted in the early stages of revolutionary base building The Jinggangshan highlands provided the base for Mao Zedong s first efforts at rural revolution Chinese histories and most Western accounts have focused on the heroic exploits of Mao and his Communist Party comrades battling the natural elements hostile military forces and skeptical authorities in the urban based Communist Central Committee This long awaited work penetrates the hagiographic haze of Mao centered analysis to provide a close narrative and rich social history of the Jinggangshan base The author explores the historical patterns of local strongman rule clientelist politics lineage conflict and ethnic struggle within which the party competed for power Through this multifaceted lens the revolutionary experience in Jinggangshan is equally dramatic but considerably more sobering than the conventional story Among Western studies of the Chinese revolution this work stands out as the definitive account of the critical moment in the 1920s when the physical and ideological center of the Communist movement shifted from the cities to the countryside This was a process of elite mediated political osmosis and adaptive compromises with local traditions The party was not simply an outside force manipulating social tensions for its own political ends There was instead an intricate interweaving of local networks and social cleavages in the highlands with the political structures and policy divisions of t

New Perspectives on the Chinese Revolution Tony Saich, Hans J. Van De Ven, 2015-03-04 These essays present fresh insights into the history of the Chinese Communist Party CCP from its founding in 1920 to its assumption of state power in 1949 They draw upon considerable archival resources which have recently become available      Writing the Revolution Raphael Hörmann, 2011 This study investigates German and English revolutionary literary discourse between 1819 and 1848 49 Marked by dramatic socioeconomic transformations this period witnessed a pronounced transnational shift from the concept of political revolution to one of social revolution Writing the Revolution engages with literary authors radical journalists early proletarian pamphleteers and political theorists tracing their demands for social liberation as well as their struggles with the specter of proletarian revolution The book argues that these ideological battles translated into competing poetics of revolution Series Kulturgeschichtliche Perspektiven Vol 10      Revolution as Reformation Peter C. Messer, William Harrison Taylor, 2021-01-19 Essays that explore how Protestants responded to the opportunities and perils of revolution in the transatlantic age Revolution as Reformation Protestant Faith in the Age of Revolutions 1688 1832 highlights the role that Protestantism played in shaping both individual and collective responses to revolution These essays explore the various ways that the Protestant tradition rooted in a perpetual process of recalibration and reformulation provided the lens through which Protestants experienced and understood social and political change in the Age of Revolutions In particular they call attention to how Protestants used those changes to continue or accelerate the Protestant imperative of refining their faith toward an improved vision of reformed religion The editors and contributors define faith broadly they incorporate individuals as well as specific sects and denominations and as much of life experience as possible not just life within a given church In this way the volume reveals how believers combined the practical demands of secular society with their personal faith and how in turn their attempts to reform religion shaped secular society The wide ranging essays highlight the exchange of Protestant thinkers traditions and ideas across the Atlantic during this period These perspectives reveal similarities between revolutionary movements across and around the Atlantic The essays also emphasize the foundational role that religion played in people's attempts to make sense of their world and the importance they placed on harmonizing their ideas about religion and politics These efforts produced novel theories of government encouraged both revolution and counterrevolution and refined both personal and collective understandings of faith and its relationship to society      The Rise to Power of the Chinese Communist Party Tony Saich, Benjamin Yang, 2016-09-16 This collection of documents covers the rise to power of the Chinese communist movement They show how the Chinese Communist Party interpreted the revolution how it devised policies to meet changing circumstances and how these policies were communicated to party members and public      The Ab Revolution Jolie Bookspan, 2003      The Problem of the Earth's Shape from Newton to Clairaut John L. Greenberg, 1995-07-28 This book investigates through the problem of the earth's shape part of the development of post Newtonian mechanics by the Parisian scientific community during the first half of the eighteenth century In the Principia Newton first raised the question of the earth's shape John Greenberg shows how continental scholars outside France influenced efforts in Paris to solve the problem and he also demonstrates that Parisian scholars including Bouguer and Fontaine did work that Alexis Claude Clairaut used in developing his mature theory of the earth's shape. The evolution of Parisian mechanics proved not to be the replacement of a Cartesian paradigm by a Newtonian one, a replacement that might be expected from Thomas Kuhn's formulations about scientific revolutions but a complex process instead involving many areas of research and contributions of different kinds from the entire scientific world. Greenberg both explores the myriad of technical problems that underlie the historical development of part of post-Newtonian mechanics which have only been rarely analyzed by Western scholars and embeds his technical discussion in a framework that involves social and institutional history, politics and biography. Instead of focusing exclusively on the historiographical problem, Greenberg shows as well that international scientific communication was as much a vital part of the scientific progress of individual nations during the first half of the eighteenth century as it is today.

Nationalism and the Politicization of History in the Former Yugoslavia Gorana Ognjenovic, Jasna Jozelic, 2021-03-19. This book is very timely: the instrumentalization of history for political goals has become a pressing issue and worrisome feature of many polities to the point of challenging even the most consolidated democracies. Focusing on Yugoslavia's fragile successor states, the authors explore plurifold analytical levels including local, regional, transnational, European and global perspectives. The authors comprehensively demonstrate how politicizing history in the postwar and postcommunist societies of what was once Yugoslavia has prevented both reconciliation and democratization.

Sabine Rutar, Leibniz Institute for East and Southeast European Studies, Germany. Ognjenovic and Jozelic focus here on the former Yugoslavia before and after its fragmentation to explore and evaluate the various uses of histories by nationalists, both those who promoted federal nationalism and those who peddle specific local nationalisms in successor states. The book deals specifically with the Western Balkans but these developments have their parallels in many other parts of the world and the book will be useful well beyond the region on which the study is based.

Paul Mojzes, Professor Emeritus, Rosemont College, USA. The former Yugoslavia has become a battlefield for the Memory Wars in spite of the wealth of judicially established facts and available evidences gathered about the atrocities in the region and various initiatives aimed at dealing with the past and efforts at transitional justice. Focusing on three periods of Yugoslav history: the Second World War, socialist Yugoslavia and the Yugoslav wars of 1991-2001, the contributors show that despite these efforts to deal with the past, sustainable peace and reconciliation across ethnic and religious groups remain a distant aim.

Marijana Toma, Center for Cultural Decontamination, Serbia. This book analyzes how nationalists in the former Yugoslavia have politicized history to further their political agendas, retaining and prolonging conflict among different cultural and religious groups and impeding the process of lasting reconciliation. It explores how narratives have been misused, drawing on examples from all of the former Yugoslav republics. With contributors from a range of disciplinary backgrounds, it provides a vital assessment of how nationalists have attempted to re-shape public collective memory and relativize facts.
