Texts And Their Traditions In The Medieval Library Of Rochester:

Texts and Their Traditions in the Medieval Library of Rochester Cathedral Priory Mary P. Richards, 1988 Texts and Their Traditions in the Medieval Library of Rochester Cathedral Priory Mary P. Richards, 1988 Studies in the Transmission of Latin Texts S. P. Oakley, 2023-06-02 This volume offers a comprehensive study of all the known manuscripts and incunables of two works the history of Alexander the Great written by Quintus Curtius Rufus probably in the first century AD and the translation into Latin by Lucius Septimius of the spoof history of the Trojan War allegedly written at the time of that war by a certain Dictys Cretensis Drawing on in excess of 200 witnesses the analysis reveals how the text of Curtius in all our extant manuscripts descends from one damaged copy that survived from the Roman Empire into the Middle Ages and how the text of Dictys survived in two such copies It demonstrates that clear and decisive results can be achieved by application of the so called stemmatic method and how the application of those results will lead to several improvements to our standard text of Dictys As well as determining which manuscripts future editors should use in editing these texts and examining them in detail it also offers equally full discussion of those which will not be needed establishing many localizations and derivations The result is a large body of material that will help deepen our knowledge of the transmission of classical Latin texts especially in the Renaissance as well as our knowledge of scribal practice and of techniques that can be deployed in the genealogical study of manuscripts and incunables Saints and their Communities Simon Yarrow, 2006-02-23 Saints and their Communities offers a new approach to the study of lay religion as evidenced in collections of miracle narratives in twelfth century England There are a number of problems associated with the interpretation of this hagiographical genre and an extended introduction discusses these The first issue is the tendency to read these narratives as transparent accounts of lay religion as if it were something susceptible to static ethnographic treatment in isolation from wider social and political activities The second issue is the challenge of explaining the miraculous as a credible part of cultural experience without appealing to reductionist notions of a medieval mindset The third issue is the problem of how to take full account of the fact that these sources are representations of lay experience by monastic authors The author argues that miracle narratives were the product of and helped to foster lay notions of Christian practice and identity centred on the spiritual patronage of certain enshrined saints The six main chapters provide fully contextualized studies of selected miracle collections Yarrow looks at when these collections were made who wrote them the kinds of audiences they are likely to have reached and the messages they were intended to convey He shows how these texts served to represent specific cults in terms that articulated the values and interests of the institutions acting as custodians of the relics and how alongside other programmes of textual production these collections of stories can be linked to occasions of uncertainty or need in the life of these institutions A concluding chapter argues the case for miracle collections as evidence of the attempt by traditional monasteries to reach out to the relatively affluent peasantry and to urban communities in society and their rural hinterlands with offers of protection and opportunities for them to express their social status with reference to tomb centred sanctity

Two Old English Apocrypha and Their Manuscript Source Denis Brearley, Julia Crick, 2007-02 The manuscript source for the Old English versions of two biblical apocrypha The Gospel of Nichodemus and The Avenging of the Saviour From Lawmen to Plowmen Stephen Yeager, The Sibyl and Her Scribes Anke Holdenried, 2017-05-15 The Sibylla Tiburtina is a Latin prophecy attributed to a prophetess from classical antiquity It concludes with an account of the End of History involving the coming of the Antichrist and his battle with a Last World Emperor Approximately 100 manuscripts written between the mid 11th and the 16th centuries survive which testify to the Tiburtina s immense popularity in the medieval West as such the Tiburtina is a key text for understanding medieval apocalypticism and occupies an important place in the intellectual history of the Middle Ages However studies of the manuscripts and the history of the text have been largely neglected in comparison with other similar works so little is currently known about who copied and read the prophecy Dr Holdenried s research fills this gap This study is based on an examination of all surviving manuscripts and includes an analysis of the textual material which accompanies the Tiburtina a survey of titles and annotations as well as research on variant texts including several hitherto unknown Modern historiography regards the Tiburtina solely as a vehicle for expressing contemporary political concerns triggered by crises thought to herald the End of the World This book provides a much more varied picture and offers a new approach to the Tiburtina by placing it for the first time in the context of medieval traditions which saw Sibylline prophecy as independent non Christian evidence of Christ s life and as confirmation of His divinity As is shown these traditions had a major impact on the reception of the Tiburtina The book concludes with a repertory of the manuscripts together with brief outlines of individual textual traditions as represented in groups of manuscripts which will constitute a valuable reference source for other scholars

After Alfred Pauline Stafford, 2020-07-02 The vernacular Anglo Saxon Chronicles cover the centuries which saw the making of England and its conquest by Scandinavians and Normans After Alfred traces their development from their genesis at the court of King Alfred to the last surviving chronicle produced at the Fenland monastery of Peterborough These texts have long been part of the English national story Pauline Stafford considers the impact of this on their study and editing since the sixteenth century addressing all surviving manuscript chronicles identifying key lost ones and reconsidering these annalistic texts in the light of wider European scholarship on medieval historiography The study stresses the plural chronicles whilst also identifying a tradition of writing vernacular history which links them It argues that that tradition was an expression of the ideology of a southern elite engaged in the conquest and assimilation of old kingdoms north of the Thames Trent and Humber Vernacular chronicling is seen not as propaganda but as engaged history writing closely connected to the court whose networks and personnel were central to the production and continuation of these chronicles In particular After Alfred connects many chronicles to bishops and especially to the Archbishops of York and Canterbury The disappearance of the English speaking elite after the Norman Conquest had profound impacts on these texts It repositioned their authors in relation to the court and royal power and ultimately resulted in the end of this tradition of vernacular chronicling
