How do we learn from one another on the internet How can we defend ourselves from propaganda and seek the truth How do our race gender and other aspects of our identity imbue how we learn and know things Social epistemology explores timely and urgent questions such as these which is why the field has seen an explosion of interest in recent years Having originated as a subfield social epistemology now permeates the agenda of mainstream epistemology even though it challenges epistemology's traditional focus on the individual The Oxford Handbook of Social Epistemology offers a collection of cutting edge essays on many of the most important issues in this rapidly growing area of philosophy It takes stock of recent developments in the field and reassesses topics that have been thought to fit comfortably within a more traditional approach to epistemology including our capacities to know our own minds to reason and to remember by examining the ways in which they might be significantly impacted by one's social environment Several chapters interrogate the boundaries of what social epistemology is by exploring its application to significant issues outside of philosophy such as psychology sociology and political theory as well as the ways it intersects with ethics the philosophies of language and mind political philosophy feminist philosophy and critical philosophy of race Divided into seven sections this handbook provides a comprehensive coverage of work in this exciting and fertile area of philosophy as it highlights the relevance and importance of social factors to some of the most pressing epistemological questions facing us as agents in the world

Death Anxiety and Religious Belief Jonathan Jong, Jamin Halberstadt, 2016-08-25 There are no atheists in foxholes or so we hear The thought that the fear of death motivates religious belief has been around since the earliest speculations about the origins of religion There are hints of this idea in the ancient world but the theory achieves prominence in the works of Enlightenment critics and Victorian theorists of religion and has been further developed by contemporary cognitive scientists Why do people believe in gods Because they fear death Yet despite the abiding appeal of this simple hypothesis there has not been a systematic attempt to evaluate its central claims and the assumptions underlying them Do human beings fear death If so who fears death more religious or nonreligious people Do reminders of our mortality really motivate religious belief Do religious beliefs actually provide comfort against the inevitability of death In Death Anxiety and Religious Belief Jonathan Jong and Jamin Halberstadt begin to answer these questions drawing on the extensive literature on the psychology of death anxiety and religious belief from childhood to the point of death as well as their own experimental research on conscious and unconscious fear and faith In the course of their investigations they consider the history of ideas about religion s origins challenges of psychological measurement and the very nature of emotion and belief Dogma's Primrose Path John L. Martinez, 2015-02-03 Dogma's Primrose Path addresses how the perpetual presence of ignorance poverty and war throughout the world is accepted by most people as an inevitable consequence of human life given man s incurably evil greedy and violent nature John L Martinez argues that this almost universal acceptance is itself a dogmatically learned and programmed condition This book suggests that human beings need to discard their dogmatic straightjackets and begin to thrive upon reason logic perception and experience in order to live together fruitfully and peaceably Evolutionary

Sociology for Teachers David Snedden, 1924 Credition - An Interdisciplinary Approach to the Nature of Beliefs and Believing Rüdiger J. Seitz, Hans Ferdinand Angel, Raymond Paloutzian, Ann Taves, 2023-07-27 The concept of credition represents an innovative research field at the interface of the natural sciences and the humanities addressing the nature of beliefs and believing Credition signifies the integrative information processing that is brought about by neurophysiologically defined neural activity in the brain affording decision making In analogy to cognition and emotion it is mediated by neural processes and constrains behavior by predictive coding Three categories of beliefs have been defined on the background of evolutionary biology that can be differentiated linguistically The goal of the collection of research papers is to provide an interdisciplinary discourse on an international level in the emerging field of credition On this basis individual group specific and cultural narratives of secular and non secular origin can become normative in particular when enhanced by ritual acts

Also the recently defined belief categories can pave the way for novel approaches of empirical research on the formation of civilizations and cultures as well as for new perspectives on the psychopathological understanding of mental disorders. The disciplines of empirical research such as cognitive science, neurophysiology, neuropsychology, social neuroscience shall counteract with theoretical disciplines such as anthropology, philosophy and theology in order to elaborate premises that are suited to bridge the scientific gap. The potential contributors will submit their abstracts such that they are available for the International meeting Credit: An Interdisciplinary Challenge that is going to take place in October 2021 in Hannover, Germany. Following the symposium, the participants shall elaborate their perspective concerning beliefs and believing based on their expertise and the information they have learned during the symposium. The authors are expected to submit a concise paper of 2000 words C-Type Article.
