despite the more challenging economic climate, the growth of the sector there still has to be encouraging, says the European Commission. The Commission's report states that, generally, the growth of the food industry has been positive, but the food sector has not been immune to the effects of the economic crisis. The Commission also notes that the food sector has been able to maintain its position as a key sector in the economy, and that it has been able to adapt to the changing market conditions. International trade in services, such as the "digital trade" sector, is also growing rapidly. The World Bank's World Economic Outlook (2019) estimates that digital trade in services will reach $10 trillion by 2025, up from $5 trillion in 2018. This growth is driven by the increasing use of digital technologies in service industries, such as e-commerce, digital marketing, and digital education. The World Bank also notes that digital trade in services is a key driver of economic growth and job creation in emerging markets.
