The Paris Type Romance:

The Form of Greek Romance B. P. Reardon, 2014-07-14 In the early Roman Empire a new literary genre began to flourish mainly in the Greek world prose fiction or romance Broadly defined as a love story that offers adventure and a romantic vision of life this form of literature emerged long after the other genres and until recently seemed hardly worthy of critical attention Here B P Reardon addresses the growing interest in ancient fiction by providing a literary and cultural framework in which to understand Greek romance and by demonstrating its importance as an artistic and social phenomenon Beginning with a discussion of Chariton's Chaereas and Callirhoe Reardon sets out the generic characteristics of the romance He then moves through a wide range of works including those of Longus and Heliodorus and reveals their sophistication in terms of social observation technique within a convention and the stance adopted by the authors toward their own creations Although antiquity left behind little discussion of the genre Reardon shows how romance can be assessed within its time period by considering the practice of narrative in other Greek literature and the concept of fiction in antiquity Originally published in 1991 The Princeton Legacy Library uses the latest print on demand technology to again make available previously out of print books from the distinguished backlist of Princeton University Press These editions preserve the original texts of these important books while presenting them in durable paperback and hardcover editions The goal of the Princeton Legacy Library is to vastly increase access to the rich scholarly heritage found in the thousands of books published by Princeton University Press since its founding in 1905

Understanding Genre and Medieval Romance Kevin Sean Whetter, 2008 Unique in combining a comprehensive and comparative study of genre with a study of romance this book constitutes a significant contribution to ongoing critical debates over the definition of romance and the genre and artistry of Malory's Morte Darthur K S Whetter addresses the questions of how exactly romance might be defined and how such an awareness of genre impacts upon both the understanding and reception of the texts in question The Merveilleux in Chrétien de Troyes' Romances Lucienne Carasso-Bulow, 1976 Songs by Henri Reber (1807-1880), Six Romances Populaires (1849), Six Melodies de Victor Hugo (1855), and Five Other Songs by Edouard Lalo (1823-1892) David Tunley, 2014-10-13 First Published in 1995 This series comprises nearly 300 romances and melodies most of which were composed during the 40 years that saw a blossoming of the romantic spirit in all the arts in France This volume looks at Romantic French song of the 1830s to the 1870s and includes the works of Reber Hugo and Lalo Manet and the Family Romance Nancy Locke, 2001 Edouard Manet's paintings have long been recognized for being visually compelling and uniquely recalcitrant While critics have noted the presence of family members and intimates in paintings such as Le Déjeuner sur l'herbe Nancy Locke takes an unprecedented look at the significance of the artist's family relationships for his art. Locke argues that a kind of mythology of the family or Freudian family romance frequently structures Manet's compositional decisions and choice of models. By looking at the representation of the family as a volatile mechanism for the development of sexuality and of repression, conflict and desire, Locke brings powerful new interpretations to some of Manet's most complex works. Locke considers, for example, the impact of a father-son drama rooted in a closely guarded family secret: the adultery of Manet's father and the status of Léon Leenhoff. Her nuanced exploration of the implications of this story that Manet in fact married his father's mistress makes us look afresh at even well-known paintings such as Olympia. This book sheds new light on Manet's infamous interest in gypsies, street musicians and itinerants as Locke analyzes the activities of Manet's father as a civil judge. She also reexamines the close friendship between Manet and the Impressionist painter Berthe Morisot, who married Manet's brother. Morisot becomes the subject of a series of meditations on the elusiveness of the self, the transience of identity and conflicting concerns with appearances and respectability. Manet and the Family Romance offers an entirely new set of arguments about the cultural forces that shaped these alluring paintings. The New Historians of the Twelfth-century Renaissance Peter Damian-Grint, 1999

Examination of the striking new style of writing history in the twelfth century by men such as Gaimar, Wace and Ambroise. The mid twelfth century saw the sudden appearance of a remarkable group of writers, the new historians, authors such as Geoffrey Gaimar, Benoît de Sainte-Maure, Wace, Jordan Fantosme and Ambroise, who were the earliest historical writers to use French. Each had his own style and authorial persona, yet together, despite their considerable differences, they pioneered a common form of historical writing which is quite distinct from the styles of previous vernacular writers. This book studies some of the more characteristic elements of the common style used by the vernacular historians. Their detached and self-conscious authorial presentation is particularly notable; it is seen both in the prologues and epilogues to their works, where they present their source materials as reliable, themselves as serious scholars and their works as worthy of belief, and constantly throughout the text as the historians' direct audience response to their work. The author shows how this historical style fits into both the vernacular and the Latin literature current in the period; the vernacular historians borrowed elements from both the learned and the popular traditions to produce their own successful and vigorous hybrid one, which was still producing new shoots as late as the fifteenth century and which was widely copied and imitated by both writers of courtly romance and by writers of prose history. Dr PETER DAMIAN GRINT teaches at Brasenose College, Oxford. A Love Letter to Paris Rebecca Raisin, 2024-07-08 Don't miss this escapist summer romance from bestselling author Rebecca Raisin. Late at night, when I wander the streets of Paris, my thoughts turn to her. How do I tell her how I feel? Perhaps I need to show her. The pretty little streets of Montmartre are abuzz with a rumour. Apparently, a mystery matchmaker known only as Paris Cupid has somehow helped the city's most famous bachelor find love. But old-fashioned romantic Lilou is staying very quiet. She'd just wanted to set up her best friend and to get on with her life, selling whimsical old love letters in Paris's famous St Ouen.

Music in Eighteenth-Century Austria David Wyn Jones, 2006-11-02 The music of Haydn Mozart and Beethoven forms a cornerstone of the modern repertoire but very little is known about the context in which these composers worked This volume of twelve essays by leading international scholars considers some of the musical traditions and practices of this little-understood period of music history Beginning with the early decades of the eighteenth century the volume documents selected aspects of musical life and style from the late Baroque period through to the early years of the nineteenth century The four main areas covered in this exploration of music history are orchestral music sacred music opera and keyboard music Georg Reutter Haydn's teacher Antonio Salieri Mozart's colleague and W. A. Mozart a rival of Beethoven are just three of the period's prominent musicians who are discussed at length

The Women in the Life of the Bridegroom Adeline Fehribach, 1998 This book sheds new light on the women in the Fourth Gospel Unlike most works that approach the topic from a historical critical perspective this book approaches the topic from a historical literary perspective and attempts to illustrate for the modern reader how a first century reader would have understood the characterizations of the women given first century cultural and literary norms and the theology of the implied author The thesis of this book is that the primary purpose of the women in the Fourth Gospel is to support the portrayal of Jesus as the Messianic Bridegroom and further the plot of Jesus giving the people the power to become children of God John 1 12 This historical literary analysis exposes a highly androcentric and patriarchal text which leads the author in the end to question current assumptions that behind the text exists a community or school whose egalitarianism extended to women

Graham's Illustrated Magazine of Literature, Romance, Art, and Fashion ,1854 The Romance of Emaré Edith Rickert,1906 Boundaries in Medieval Romance Neil Cartlidge,2008 Medieval romance frequently and perhaps characteristically capitalises on the dramatic and suggestive possibilities implicit in boundaries not only the geographical political and cultural frontiers that medieval romances imagine and imply but also more metaphorical demarcations It is these boundaries as they appear in insular romances circulating in English and French which the essays in this volume address They include the boundary between reality and fictionality boundaries between different literary traditions modes and cultures and boundaries between different kinds of experience or perception especially the altered states associated with sickness magic the supernatural or the divine
