Playback and Studies of Animal Communication Peter K. McGregor, 2013-11-11 Playback is the technique of rebroadcasting natural or synthetic signals to animals and observing their response. The ability to present a putative signal in isolation without the potential confounding effects of other activities of the signaller is the main reason for the depth and range of our knowledge of communication systems. To date, playback of sound signals has predominated, but playback of electric signals and even video playback of visual signals suggests that playback will become just as prevalent in studies of communication in other sensory modalities. This book is one of the outcomes of a workshop on playback held at Thombridge Hall in the Peak District National Park, England, during August 1991. There were two reasons for organising the workshop. First, the considerable and lively debate in the literature about the design and analysis of playback experiments, the pseudoreplication debate, was in danger of generating more heat than light. A workshop forum seemed the obvious place to clarify and, if possible, resolve the debate. Second, with the number of new playback and analysis techniques increasing rapidly, it seemed an opportune moment to discuss these techniques and to review some rapidly developing areas of interest in sound communication.

El-Shaarawi, 1989-12-31 This book contains the proceedings of a workshop, Statistical Methods for the Assessment of Point Source Pollution, held September 12-14, 1988, at the Canada Centre for Inland Waters in Burlington, Ontario, Canada. The objectives of the workshop were to advance the art, science and application of statistical methods to current water quality issues by stimulating discussions and disseminating ideas and information. The emphasis was on statistical problems associated with monitoring and controlling discharges from industries and municipalities and assessing the impact of these discharges on receiving water quality. b) provide a forum for managers, engineers, scientists and statisticians to present and discuss techniques for evaluating water quality data and planning monitoring activities. c) provide a published state-of-the-art summary of the application of statistical methods for the assessment of point source discharges and their impact on water quality. The papers contained in this volume cover a number of topics that are of concern not only for monitoring and assessing point source pollution but also for other environmental problems.
