Policing within the Law John Eterno, 2003-07-30 At a time when police abuses and errors make the headlines it is important to understand just what goes into the decisions that police make when they are confronted with various crime scenarios in the line of duty Required to respond within the law many officers are able to respond in a legal manner to crime situations in which court decisions are written clearly and with easily applied guidelines But what happens when those decisions and laws are written in a way that invites interpretation and varies from situation to situation Based on a case study of New York City police officers this important volume analyzes how officers contend with often ambiguous laws in the face of specific crime scenarios In addition the author explores other influences on police decision making including officer characteristics and attitudes and makes policy recommendations in an effort to encourage the reinforcement of legal guidelines so that the rights of individuals are appropriately balanced with the duty to control crime Based on a survey of nearly 1 300 officers responses to specially designed hypothetical crime scenarios this study illustrates how police officers are likely to react with regard to the law in these situations While officers tend to act legally where the laws are clear less clearly articulated laws leave the police with a variety of different options for action in ambiguous situations For instance in weapons scenarios the survey showed that officers would often take advantage of ambiguity in the law with regard to how they may respond In drug scenarios officers will increase their tendency to do a search if the situation is slightly ambiguous though they will decrease their search responses when the situation appears to be highly ambiguous Eterno carefully examines the various responses and the laws that are meant to guide what police may or may not do in given situations concluding that better laws and bright line rules will help to check and balance the need to fight crime aggressively while preventing the abuse of authority that may arise in questionable circumstances

Faith, Morality, and Civil Society Dale McConkey, Peter Augustine Lawler, 2003-06-05 In this rich collection of essays editors Dale McConkey and Peter Augustine Lawler explore the contributions that religious faith and morality can make to a civil society Though the level of religious expression has remained high in the United States the shift from traditional religious beliefs to a far more individualized style of faith has led many to contend that no faith commitment collective or personal should contribute to the vibrancy of a civil democratic society Challenging those who believe that the private realm is the only appropriate locus of religious belief the contributors to this volume believe that religion can inform and invigorate the secular institutions of society such as education economics and politics Drawn from a wide variety of religious and moral traditions these diverse essays show from many perspectives the important contribution religion has to make in the public square that is civil society Armenia, Azerbaijan, and Georgia Ronald G. Suny, 1996-04 The Interface Between Intellectual Property Rights and Competition Policy Steven D. Anderman, 2007-05-10 The purpose of this book is to examine the experience of a number of countries in grappling with the problems of reconciling the two fields of competition policy and intellectual property rights The first part of the book indicates the variation in legislative models as well as the wide variety of judicial and administrative doctrines that have been used The jurisdictions selected for study are the three major trading blocks with the longest experience of case law the EU the USA and Japan and three less populous countries with open economies Australia Ireland and Singapore In the second part of the book we look at a number of issues closely related to the interface between competition law and intellectual property rights Separate chapters analyse the issue of parallel trading and exhaustion of IPRs the issue of technology transfer and the economics of the interface between intellectual property and competition law Peru, 1995 North Carolina Reports North Carolina.
