Modula-2 Kaare Christian, 2012-12-06 Modula 2 is a simple yet powerful programming language that is suitable for a wide variety of applications It is based on Pascal a successful programming language that was introduced in 1970 by Niklaus Wirth During the 1970 s Pascal became the most widely taught programming language and it gained acceptance in science and industry In 1980 Dr Wirth released the Modula 2 programming language Modula 2 is an evolution of Pascal It improves on the successes of Pascal while adding the MODULE a tool for expressing the relations between the major parts of programs In addition Modula 2 contains low level features for systems programming and coroutines for concurrent programming Programming languages are important because they are used to express ideas Some programming languages are so limited that certain ideas can't be easily expressed For example languages that lack floating point arithmetic are inappropriate for scientific computations Languages such as Basic and Fortran that lack recursion are unsuitable for text processing or systems programming Sometimes a programming language is useable for a certain application but it is far from ideal A good example is the difficulty of writing large programs in pure Pascal Pascal is a poor language for large jobs because it lacks facilities for partitioning a program viii Preface 6

Fault-Tolerant Control of Deterministic Input/Output Automata Melanie Schuh, 2017-08-30 This thesis deals with active fault tolerant control of discrete event systems modeled by deterministic Input Output I/O automata Active fault tolerant control realizes three operating modes nominal control fault diagnosis and controller reconfiguration A new fault tolerant controller which autonomously ensures the fulfillment of the control aim both in the faultless and the faulty case is developed The control aim is to steer the plant into a desired final state while guaranteeing the avoidance of illegal transitions Corresponding to the three operating modes the proposed integrated fault tolerant controller consists of a tracking controller a diagnostic unit and a reconfiguration unit As long as no fault is present the tracking controller controls the plant in a feedback loop in order to guarantee the fulfillment of the control aim At the same time the diagnostic unit detects whether a fault occurred If a fault is detected a novel active diagnosis method is used in order to identify the present fault as well as the current state of the faulty plant The reconfiguration unit uses the diagnostic result provided by the diagnostic unit to reconfigure the tracking controller As a main result it is proved that the plant in the fault tolerant control loop fulfills the control aim in the faultless as well as in the faulty case if the control loop is recoverable The applicability of the fault tolerant control method is demonstrated by means of a handling process at the Handling System HANS
