Through a detailed description of the life and activities of the middle class married woman of London between 1875 and 1900 this study reveals how housewives unwittingly became engines for change as the new century neared In marked contrast to the stereotypical depictions of Victorian women in literature and on television Draznin reveals a woman seldom seen the stay at home housewife whose activities were not much different than those of her counterparts today By exploring her daily activities how she cleaned her home disciplined her children managed her servants stretched a limited budget and began to indulge herself one discovers the human dimension of women who lived more than a century ago While most studies of this period consider values aspirations and attitudes this book concentrates on actions what these women did all day to provide readers with a new perspective on Victorian life Late Victorian London was a surprisingly modern city with a public face of well lit streets an excellent underground railway system and extended municipal services In the home gas stoves were replacing coal ranges and household appliances were becoming more common Having both money to spend and a strong incentive to buy the new laborsaving devices ready to wear clothing and other manufactured products the middle class matron s resistance to change gave way to a rising consumer culture Despite her nearly exclusive preoccupation with home and family these urban women became agents for the modernization of Britain The Writer's Guide to Everyday Life in Regency and Victorian England, from 1811-1901 Kristine Hughes, 1997 Provides period information on home furnishings fashion medicine the courts entertainment shopping travel and etiquette Survey of Historic Costume Phyllis G. The Commodity Culture of Victorian England Thomas Richards,1990 This provocative and theoretically sophisticated book reveals how capitalism produced and sustained a culture of its own in the nineteenth and early twentieth centuries Richards provides a valuable account of the interaction between cultural and business development in Victorian England by focusing on the evolution of advertising Through an examination of five case studies ranging from how advertisers employed images of the Crystal Palace Exhibition of 1851 to their use of images of women just before WWI he argues that the British developed a new type of culture in the mid and late 19th century a new way of thinking and living increasingly based upon the possession of material goods commodities Revising the findings of some earlier scholars Richards shows that cultural forms of consumerism came into being well before the consumer economy did The 50 well reproduced advertising images greatly enhance the value of this study M Blackford Choice Monographic Series Library of Congress,1976 Daily Life in the Progressive Era Steven L.
