Social And Economic Management In The Competitive Society:

Social and Economic Management in the Competitive Society Edgar Krau, 1997-12-31 In many countries of the world there is a growing feeling of uneasiness about the economic situation and its related social consequences Every day the newspapers tell us that the recession is over but we see only that scores of organizations go bankrupt while others are struggling hard to stay in business that many people have lost their jobs but welfare measures are being reduced or abolished altogether By now we should have become aware that our society is not facing temporary market difficulties but a much deeper and wider crisis with only one root in worldwide economic developments while other roots are social and psychological in nature These factors are intertwined and therefore the answer to the crisis cannot merely be an economic cost benefit analysis of organizational management Sociocultural factors participate in the economic process even at the level of individual organizations and what happens in them has backlash influences on the entire society Therefore the problem is not the management of the individual organization but the macroconception of management which in the Western world of today separates the economic aspects from the social ones and the individual organizations from society Social and Economic Management in the Competitive Society begins by analyzing the management models of today to determine which characteristics yield the best results on the economic and social levels The second step is to indicate the necessary changes of managerial thinking and acting in order to boost economic results with reasonable profits while minimizing social costs Finally the potential ramifications of such changes are explored

Competition Stefan Arora-Jonsson,Nils Brunsson,Raimund Hasse,Katarina Lagerström,2021 The spread of competition into all areas of society is one of the master trends of modern society Yet social scientists have played a surprisingly modest role in the analysis of its implications as the discussion of competition has largely been confined to the narrow context of economic markets This book opens up competition for the study of social scientists The central message of the book is that competition seems ubiquitous but it should not be taken for granted or be naturalized as an inevitable aspect of human existence Its emergence maintenance and change are based on institutions and organizational efforts and a central challenge for social science is to learn more about these processes and their outcomes With the use of a novel definition of competition more fundamental questions can be addressed than merely whether or not competition works How is competition constructed and by whom Which institutional and organizational foundations need to be considered Which behaviours result from competition What are its consequences Can competition be removed And how do these factors vary with the object of competition be it money attention status or other scarce and desired objects The chapters in the book investigate these and more questions in studies of competition among and within schools universities multinational corporations auditors waste disposal firms and fashion designers and users The chapters are written by scholars from several social science fields management organization studies sociology anthropology and education Publisher's website
