Unwanted Company Jonathan Crystal,2018-07-05 In the last quarter century the U S economy has been transformed by a large inflow of direct investment from abroad Foreign companies mainly from Europe and Japan have built factories and acquired U S firms at an ever increasing rate Jonathan Crystal finds inconsistencies in how American businesses have responded to this globalization of production U S firms especially multinationals have conflicting interests regarding investment protection Crystal shows Many American firms under siege from overseas competitors have already expended considerable energy in obtaining trade protection but they are competing not only with foreign imports but also with locally established foreign owned firms American businesses may favor stricter regulation of foreign companies that threaten their bottom line but they also consider their own interests as global investors subject to retaliatory protection in other countries Restrictions on foreign investment

it seems are not so attractive when they are imposed by other countries Unwanted Company examines the different ways in which important U S industries including semiconductors automobiles steel consumer electronics telecommunications and airlines reacted to this new challenge It focuses on the political responses of U S owned firms to how Washington ought to regulate foreign direct investment and how it ought to treat foreign owned firms in the United States Some industries welcomed or at least didn't oppose foreign investment whereas others sought restrictive and discriminatory policies Crystal demonstrates how the nature of the domestic political environment shapes the translation of economic interests into policy preferences

The Political Economy of South Africa's Post-apartheid Transition Benjamin Fine, 2025-05-26 South Africa's post apartheid transition has proven disastrous It is marked by the emergence of a black elite of enriched capitalists out of the globalisation neoliberalisation and financialisation of the economy in general and of its Minerals Energy and Financial Complex in particular By contrast inequalities poverty and failing social provision have persisted Recent attention has shifted to how this disastrous trajectory was initiated some suggesting a lack of available alternative policy options at the time of transition This is shown to be false with a full range of progressive alternatives being rejected with corresponding consequences from state capture to electoral defeat ecological alternatives to chemical pesticides and the zero emission vehicle mandate in California By exploring the relationship between time strategies and technological change this book will undoubtedly lead to a more efficient and sustainable innovation policy It will be required reading for academics researchers and policymakers working in the fields of environmental innovation sustainability technology policy and political science      High-tech Protectionism Claude E.
