Risse,2015-12-30 From the late nineteenth century until the 1920s authorities required San Francisco s Pesthouse to segregate the diseased from the rest of the city Although the Pesthouse stood out of sight and largely out of mind it existed at a vital nexus of civic life where issues of medicine race class environment morality and citizenship entwined and played out Guenter B Risse places this forgotten institution within an emotional climate dominated by widespread public dread and disgust In Driven by Fear he analyzes the unique form of stigma generated by San Franciscans Emotional states like xenophobia and racism played a part Yet the phenomenon also included competing medical paradigms and unique economic needs that encouraged authorities to protect the city s reputation as a haven of health restoration As Risse argues public health history requires an understanding of irrational as well as rational motives To that end he delves into the spectrum of emotions that drove extreme measures like segregation and isolation and fed psychological ideological and pragmatic urges to scapegoat and stereotype victims particularly Chinese victims of smallpox leprosy plague and syphilis Filling a significant gap in contemporary scholarship Driven by Fear looks at the past to offer critical lessons for our age of bioterror threats and emerging infectious diseases Vietnamese Traditional Medicine C. American Biodefense Frank L. Smith III, 2014-09-19 Biological weapons have threatened U S national security since at least World War II Historically however the U S military has neglected research development acquisition and doctrine for biodefense Following September 11 and the anthrax letters of 2001 the United States started spending billions of dollars per year on medical countermeasures and biological detection systems But most of this funding now comes from the Department of Health and Human Services rather than the Department of Defense Why has the U S military neglected biodefense and allowed civilian organizations to take the lead in defending the country against biological attacks In American Biodefense Frank L. Smith III addresses this puzzling and largely untold story about science technology and national security Smith argues that organizational frames and stereotypes have caused both military neglect and the rise of civilian biodefense In the armed services influential ideas about kinetic warfare have undermined defense against biological warfare The influence of these ideas on science and technology challenges the conventional wisdom that national security policy is driven by threats or bureaucratic interests Given the ideas at work inside the U S military Smith explains how the lessons learned from biodefense can help solve other important problems that range from radiation weapons to cyber attacks
