Cities, Slums and Gender in the Global South Sylvia Chant,Cathy McIlwaine,2015-12-22 Developing regions are set to account for the vast majority of future urban growth and women and girls will become the majority inhabitants of these locations in the Global South This is one of the first books to detail the challenges facing poorer segments of the female population who commonly reside in slums It explores the variegated disadvantages of urban poverty and slum dwelling from a gender perspective This book revolves around conceptualisation of the gender urban slum interface which explains key elements to understanding women's experiences in slum environments. It has a specific focus on the ways in which gender inequalities can be entrenched but also alleviated. Included is a review of the demographic factors which are increasingly making cities everywhere feminised spaces such as increased rural urban migration among women, demographic ageing and rising proportions of female headed households in urban areas. Discussions focus in particular on education, paid and unpaid work, access to land, property and urban services, violence, intra urban mobility and political participation and representation. This book will be of use to researchers and professionals concerned with gender and development, urbanisation and rural urban migration.

The Saturday Evening Post, 1915 Autonomy and Long-term Care George J. Agich, 1993. The realities and misconceptions of long term care and the challenges it presents for the ethics of autonomy are analyzed in this perceptive work. While defending the concept of autonomy, the author argues that the standard view of autonomy as non interference and independence has only a limited applicability for long term care. He explains that autonomy should be understood as a comprehensiveness that defines the overall course of a person's life rather than as a way of responding to an isolated situation. Agich distinguishes actual and ideal autonomy and argues that actual autonomy is better revealed in the everyday experiences of long term care than in dramatic conflict ridden paradigm situations such as decisions to institutionalize, to initiate aggressive treatments or to withhold or to withdraw life sustaining treatments. Through a phenomenological analysis of long term care, he develops an ethical framework for it by showing how autonomy is actually manifest in certain structural features of the social world of long term care. Throughout this timely work, the rich sociological and anthropological literature on aging and long term care is referenced and the practical ethical questions of promoting and enhancing the exercise of autonomy are addressed.

The Ladies' Home Journal, 1893 Mood Swings Frankie Barnett, 2024-05-28. Shortlisted for the 2024 Grand Prix du livre de Montréal. Shortlisted for the 2025 Sunburst Award. Longlisted for the 2025 Leacock Medal for Humour. In a pre apocalyptic world not unlike our own, a young Instagram poet starts an affair with a California billionaire who's promised a time machine that will make everything normal again, whatever that means. Everyone knows something's off but nobody can agree on just what it is. Maybe it's the weather, maybe it's because everyone's so sensitive these days. Jenlena and Daphne are two aimless humanities grads living in a crumbling Montreal when animals besiege cities and towns across the world, terrorizing their human residents. Though shocking, the threat is quickly neutralized when the animals are killed en masse for the safety of humanity. In the post fauna world, Jenlena is transformed, shaking off her characteristic passivity to capitalize on other people's heartbreak and grief by selling plants that have come to replace pets and impersonating dogs for pay. Meanwhile, Daphne, a once promising student, flounders in a deep depression, smoking weed and slacking off at work to hang out with her cancelled boyfriend. When Jenlena meets the California billionaire Roderick Maeve and the two become romantically entangled, she is exposed to a new understanding of wealth, power and the gender economy just as the world hurtles toward its alleged salvation. Marked with Frankie Barnett's poignant intelligence and sly sense of humour Mood Swings is a stand out debut The Sunset ,1922 Arthur's Home Magazine ,1874 Arthur's Illustrated Home Magazine ,1874 Sunset ,1922
