So Zärtlich War Suleyken:

So Zärtlich War Suleyken Siegfried Lenz, 1960 So zärtlich war Suleyken Siegfried Lenz, 1955 Merkwaaardige geschiedenissen van het Poolse platteland Screening War Paul Cooke, Marc Silberman, 2010 Re examines German cinema's representation of the Germans as victims during the Second World War and its aftermath The recent discovery of German wartime suffering has had a particularly profound impact in German visual culture Films from Margarethe von Trotta's Rosenstrasse 2003 to Oliver Hirschbiegel's Oscar nominated Downfall 2004 and the two part television mini series Dresden 2006 have shown how ordinary Germans suffered during and after the war Such films have been presented by critics as treating a topic that had been taboo for German filmmakers However the representation of wartime suffering has a long tradition on the German screen For decades filmmakers have recontextualized images of Germans as victims to engage shifting social and ideological discourses By focusing on this process the present volume explores how the changing representation of Germans as victims has shaped the ways in which both of the postwar German states and the now unified nation have attempted to face the trauma of the past and to construct a contemporary place for themselves in the world Contributors See n Allan Tim Bergfelder Daniela Berghahn Erica Carter David Clarke John E Davidson Sabine Hake Jennifer Kapczynski Manuel Kppen Rachel Palfreyman Brad Prager Johannes von Moltke Paul Cooke is Professor of German Cultural Studies at the University of Leeds and Marc Silberman is Professor of German at the University of Wisconsin

desire for death An encounter with a young Polish partisan Wanda makes Proska further doubt the validity of his oath of allegiance and he seeks to answer the questions that obsess him When conscience and duty clash which is more important Is it possible to take any action without becoming guilty in some way And where is Wanda this woman from the resistance he can't forget Written in 1951 The Turncoat is Siegfried Lenz's second novel Rejected by his publisher who thought that the story of a German soldier defecting to the Soviet side would be unwelcome in the context of the Cold War the manuscript was forgotten for nearly seventy years before being rediscovered after the author's death A posthumous triumph

Victims and Perpetrators: 1933-1945 Laurel Cohen-Pfister, Dagmar Wienroeder-Skinner, 2012-03-12 This volume examines the politics of history and memory in Germany today through a review and analysis of seminal developments in the current discourse on 1933-1945 An interdisciplinary work this book examines questions of representing the past from the perspective of literary studies social psychology film studies history and cultural studies Themes include transgenerational memory and remembrance the air war and German literature commemoration and silences transnational reconciliation and historical consciousness in the German present The collected essays make clear that as the current discourse contributes toward an historically informed differentiated understanding of individuals' roles in the Third Reich and World War Two victim and perpetrator identities cannot be defined as exclusive from one another The discourse emphasizes personal over collective experience and answers questions of responsibility and guilt on the individual level

Beyond Pug's Tour, 2022-06-08 At a time when the world Europe especially is once more threatened by murderous conflicts between groups of people claiming ethnic and national identity as a basis for sovereignty over specific territories it is timely to consider the part that literature has played and is playing in the creation of ethnic and national stereotypes What role do such stereotypes have in literature How are they created From what materials are they constructed What purpose do ethnic and national stereotypes serve Can it ever be a useful one Are they avoidable Can we live without them What can be done about the deleterious effects they may be thought to produce Stereotyping is worldwide is there a tribe race and nation in existence which escapes being stereotyped by its neighbours In what sense are these stereotypes accurate How are these stereotypes reflected in and reinforced by literature Should and can literature do anything about them In Beyond Pug's Tour National and Ethnic Stereotyping in Theory and Literary Practice literary scholars as well as academics engaged in sociological and psychological research consider these and other questions by examining the work of specific authors and the circumstances in which stereotyping plays such a crucial part

Imperial Fictions Todd Kontje, 2018-04-25 Imperial Fictions explores ways in which writers from late antiquity to the present have imagined communities before and beyond the nation state It takes as its point of departure challenges to the discrete nation state posed by globalization migration and European integration today but then circles back to the beginnings of European history after the fall of the Roman Empire Unlike nationalist literary historians of the nineteenth century who sought the tribal roots of an allegedly homogeneous people this study finds a distant mirror of analogous processes today in the fluid mixtures and movements of peoples Imperial Fictions argues that it is time to stop thinking about today's multicultural present as a deviation from a culturally monolithic past We should rather consider the various permutations of German identities that have been negotiated within local and imperial contexts from the early Middle Ages to the present
