The Science of Photomedicine J.D. Regan, 2012-12-06 Although the history of photomedicine dates back thousands of years with even preliterate cultures appreciating the healing properties of sunlight for many workers in the discipline photomedicine is associated with the observation about 100 years ago of Niels Finsen a Danish physician Finsen recognized that people with tuberculosis who lived in Norway and who had very little exposure to sunlight often developed facial lesions lupus vulgaris which would decrease and sometimes disappear during the summer months This very observant physician reasoned that artificial light ought to produce the same effect as sunlight and began utilizing the radiation from the newly available carbon arc At first he used a glass lens to concentrate the radiation but since this produced considerable burning he replaced this with a hollow glass lens filled with water However while this reduced the heat burns it did not actually duplicate the effect of direct sunlight Finally using a hollow lens filled with water but equipped with quartz windows Finsen was able to imitate even improve upon the effect of sunlight As a result lupus vulgaris was practically eliminated from the Scandinavian countries
