The Politics of Loss and Trauma in Contemporary Israeli Cinema Raz Yosef,2012-05-23 The last decade has marked the growing visibility and worldwide interest in Israeli cinema Films such as Walk on Water Or My Treasure Beaufort and Waltz with Bashir have been commercially and critically successful both in Europe and the United States and have won a number of prestigious international awards This book examines for the first time the new ideological and aesthetic trends in contemporary Israeli cinema More specifically it critically explores the complex and crucial role of Israeli cinema in remembering and restaging traumas and losses that were denied entry into the shared national past One of the most striking phenomena in contemporary Israeli cinema is the number and scope of films dealing with past traumatic events events that were repressed or insufficiently mourned such as the memory of the Holocaust traumas from wars and terrorist attacks and the losses entailed by the experience of immigration Current Israeli cinema exposes and highlights a radical discontinuity between history and memory Traumatic events from Israeli society s past are represented as the private memory of distinct social groups soldiers immigrants women queers and not as collective memory as a lived and practiced tradition that conditions Israeli society This detachment from national collective memory pulls the films into a world marked by a persistent blurring of the historical context and by private and subjective impressions a timeless world of dreams hallucinations and myths These groups feel duty bound to remember the past recasting repressed memories through the cinema in order to return and to give meaning to their identity The Politics of Popular Representation Kenneth MacKinnon,1992 These together with the emphasis on individual responsibility for health and material security not to mention resurgent machismo and a restored belief in the natural and unnatural help to explain the health disaster experienced in the United States United Kingdom and elsewhere A review of English language cinematic entertainment of the eighties reveals that the health crisis

was scarcely alluded to although such values as those of militarism masculinity and family loyalty were addressed whether supportively or critically It is the argument of this book that the HIV virus and AIDS are approached if at all only obliquely particularly within the genre of the horror film and especially through those films dealing with corporeality or with lethal challenges to the traditional nuclear family

Affective Communities in World Politics Emma Hutchison, 2016-03-11 Emotions underpin how political communities are formed and function Nowhere is this more pronounced than in times of trauma The emotions associated with suffering caused by war terrorism natural disasters famine and poverty can play a pivotal role in shaping communities and orientating their politics This book investigates how affective communities emerge after trauma Drawing on several case studies and an unusually broad set of interdisciplinary sources it examines the role played by representations from media images to historical narratives and political speeches

Representations of traumatic events are crucial because they generate socially embedded emotional meanings which in turn enable direct victims and distant witnesses to share the injury as well as the associated loss in a manner that affirms a particular notion of collective identity While ensuing political orders often re-establish old patterns traumatic events can also generate new emotional cultures that genuinely transform national and transnational communities
