Telling Writing:

Telling Writing Ken Macrorie, 1985 Why is Telling Writing now in its fourth edition still going strong in hundreds of colleges and universities Ken Macrorie touches on the answer in his preface Good teaching in any field isn't a matter of employing gimmicks and choosing from a damnfool encyclopedia of tricks to play on students but a matter of setting up a climate friendly to learning and then challenging learners to connect their experience and ideas with those of the accepted authorities or producers Students can't become truly educated unless they grow out of and beyond themselves Telling Writing gives them an indispensable base a knowledge of themselves on which to grow Macrorie's approach works because it helps students break away from the deadly academic prose fostered by so many writing courses and enables them to write about and from their own experiences cognitive theory of text production Such a theory should tell what kind of mental structures underly text production how these structures are converted into coherent texts and how this process is framed within real writing time The study starts from a large corpus of real life text production processes It combines methods to explore both process and product of text production Processes are described by analyzing the pause patterns that emerge in the course of writing Products are described by analyzing their hierarchical structure Together these descriptions yield several significant insights in the real time organization of cognitive processes in production The study can be characterized as a cognitive linguistic approach to text production This volume will be of special interest to researchers in the field of psycho linguistics textlinguistics and cognitive science
