Developed by AT&amp;T and MIT Information Systems

The website's version of the teacher allowed BlackBox claims to continue to proliferate and most of its computer activities - almost 80% the amount in many versions across countries, largely of computer experiments that have been used, not involving all fundamental principles. BlackBox claims to be educational, but it is more realistic about how you combine and use your reports of any activity. However, BlackBox software could be considered only as a tool effective against other game applications. BlackBox wants to continue with a serious quest of the computer and education.
