Teaching History in a Neoliberal Age Mary Woolley, 2019-09-04 This book explores changing practice in history classrooms from the autonomy of the 1980s through the introduction of GCSEs and the National Curriculum to the prescription of the National Strategies and the pervasive influence of league tables in the first decade of the twenty first century It uses individual narratives from history teachers to shed light on a changing profession Showcasing research that is crucial reading for leaders in education it uses oral accounts from 13 experienced teachers to provide a rich testimony of the constraints and affordances acting on history teachers The book offers a unique perspective to show how teachers experienced steady but substantial changes in policy and autonomy and how this affected their practice this detail enhances an analysis of policy and curricular documents across three decades The findings are crucial for educational settings today facing crises of teacher recruitment and teacher retention This book will be of great interest to academics and higher degree research students in history education history of education and education policy It will also be of interest to beginning history teachers and senior school leaders responsible for teacher development and curriculum Assessment at 16 Keith

Selkirk, 2020-05-04 What students are deemed to have achieved when they are sixteen is the measure of how successful or otherwise their progress through the system of compulsory education has been And yet despite the importance of the process there has been no clear consensus about how best to assess students at sixteen The various formal examinations which have been tried have now largely been superseded by the GCSE a common system of examining at sixteen Originally published in 1988 the book discusses the development of this system its application to the main subject areas of the curriculum and some of its innovative aspects from both a theoretical and a practical standpoint In addition it also looks at the broader aspects of assessment of pupils at the age of sixteen and how we can give a more rounded indication of their achievements and abilities by the use of profiles and records of achievement European Dimensions and the Secondary School Curriculum Ivor

Goodson, Veronica McGivney, 2018-10-03 Originally published in 1985 Europe and the EEC seemed to be virtually synonymous for the majority of our population and the ambivalent feelings many people have about the Community together with the consistently bad press it received in the UK seemed to engender a hostility in educational circles towards teaching about Europe as a whole However if one of the aims of education is to increase children s awareness tolerance and understanding of the world about them to widen their experience and horizons then teaching about the wider world must have a place in the curriculum This book argues for education about Europe not necessarily in favour of Europe breaking down the national insularity of the UK curriculum and using Europe as one convenient window on the wider world

Historical Thinking for History Teachers Tim Allender, 2020-07-16 Effective Australian history education has never been more important for the development of critically aware and thoughtful young people History fosters important skills in reasoning historical consciousness and empathy and an appreciation of history is crucial to the development of students understanding of the very nature of our society This edited collection comprises contributions from leading historians educators and practising teachers and surveys Australian history teaching today from the development of the national curriculum to fostering historical thinking and promoting effective engagement in the history classroom The book begins with an analysis of the principles underlying the drafting of the national curriculum and features insights from the writers of the curriculum themselves It focuses on the curriculum from primary and secondary school teaching perspectives Part 2 examines the teaching of historical expertise including historical thinking and value formation as well as productive assessment and the important role social history can play in the classroom Part 3 concentrates on specific approaches to history teaching including teacher talk the use of historical fiction and film digital technology and the internet as well as museums as a teaching medium Part 4 analyses key aspects of Australian history teaching including Indigenous perspectives teaching citizenship and assisting the pre service teacher in their transition to becoming a professional Rich with insights into historical skills historical concepts and critical thinking as well as practical guidance on translating principles into engaging classroom approaches this is an essential reference for both pre service and in service history teachers and educators

Routledge Library Editions: Curriculum Various,2021-07-09 Reissuing works originally published between 1971 and 1994 this collection includes books which offer a broad spectrum of views on curriculum both within individual schools and the wider issues around curriculum development reform and implementation Some cover the debate surrounding the establishment of the national curriculum in the UK while others are a more international in scope Many of these books go beyond theory to discuss practical issues of real curriculum changes at primary or secondary level The Set includes books on cross curricular topics such as citizenship and environment and also guidance careers life skills and pastoral care in schools A fantastic collection of education history with much still relevant today
