The Internet Searcher's Handbook Peter Morville, Louis Rosenfeld, Joseph Janes, 1996. Here is a practical step by step guide to resource discovery designed to be both a tutorial for how and a resource for now. The handbook helps novice or advanced Internet users conduct comprehensive research investigations and find the answers to quick reference queries. It shows how to find information on the Internet by providing in depth coverage on all useful and usable resources including virtual libraries, Internet directories, communities of people, and Internet search tools. Examples of real searches are given for each resource. Methods to streamline locating information and addresses and instructions for a broad but selective list of Internet subject guides, directories, and search engines are also offered. Additional sections including a review of other types of information resources such as electronic discussion lists and conferencing tools round out this useful manual that is ideal for reference librarians, students, and researchers of any kind.

The Internet for Teachers and School Library Media Specialists Edward Valauskas, Monica Ertel, 1996. How can teachers and librarians successfully incorporate the Internet into their school's curricula? Valauskas, Library Journal's monthly computer book review columnist and also a columnist for the magazines Online and Database, and Ertel, Director of Knowledge Systems for Apple Computer and founder of the Apple Library Users Group, compiled this guide to show how actual successful Internet programs have been used in elementary, middle, and high schools to teach math, science, history, literature, music, and more. Included are such examples as classes in which students download French periodicals on the Net to practice language skills, look at weather data from a Gopher server, use the data to make a map and a weather forecast, and return to the Net to check their accuracy and access promising Gopher files on genetics for classroom debates on the merits of genetic engineering. Program descriptions are written by the faculty members and/or school library media specialists involved. Each example contains goals and results, budget, technical, and curricular information, plus photos and illustrations. A discussion of the Internet's future educational prospects, a bibliography of books and articles about the Net's educational applications, a listing of the best sites for curricular integration, and an index round out this innovative resource.
