The Jail Managing The Underclass In American Society:

The Jail John Irwin, 1985-09-16 Combining extensive interviews with his own experience as an inmate John Irwin constructs a powerful and graphic description of the big city jail Unlike prisons which incarcerate convicted felons jails primarily confine arrested persons not yet charged or convicted of any serious crime Irwin argues that jail disorients and degrades and instead of controlling the disreputable actually increases their number of helping to indoctrinate new recruits to the rabble class In a forceful conclusion Irwin addresses the issue of jail reform and the matter of social control demanded by society the way the consumer background report industry has privatized the surveillance and punishment of individuals conflating crime with bad credit and eviction history She positions Airbnb's 2018 policy of banning people convicted of crimes as an example of the way corporate entities are increasingly vested with the authority to determine things like the seriousness or severity of crimes Varner also tackles the phenomenon of cancel culture arguing that this is best understood not as a feature of the culture wars but rather as a partial return to what Foucault described as the punitive model of infamy in which the responsibility for punishing has been transferred from the state to individuals
