Excerpt from The Philosophy of Modernism in Its Connection With Music The prerequisite to immortality in the world of art is the capacity to create something new or in other words the capacity to invent a style Indeed let any one but survey the past history of music poetry and painting and he will notice that each great name stands for a literary or musical invention so that to talk of Keats or Shelley Beethoven or Wagner is not to talk of men only but also of very distinct styles of art And this capacity to create something new proceeds from a certain divine discontent divine because it stimulates evolution is mild and pleasant yet just sufficient to prevent the man who possesses it from sinking into that unprogressive lassitude so often associated with a good glass of port wine a widow's cruse of tobacco and a rather soporific fireside About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
