The Natural Science of the Human Species Konrad Lorenz, 1997-08 This translation contains a synopsis of all the ideas that made Lorenz famous as the founder of ethology the study of comparative animal behavior edited from the author's posthumous works by Agnes von Cranach Here Am I Where Are You The Behavior of the Greylag Goose was thought to be Konrad Lorenz's last book However in 1991 the Russian Manuscript was discovered in an attic and its subsequent publication in German has become a scientific sensation Written under the most extreme conditions in Soviet prison camps the Russian Manuscript was the first outline of a large scale work on behavioral science This translation contains a synopsis of all the ideas that made Lorenz famous as the founder of ethology the study of comparative animal behavior The Natural Science of the Human Species Konrad Lorenz, 1996-01 Edited from the author's posthumous works by Agnes von Cranach Topics include natural science its theories also portend the development of sociobiology and the new fields of behavioral and genetic psychology He writes The route to an understanding of humans leads just as surely through an understanding of animals as the evolutionary pathway of humans had led through animal precursors Lorenz also devotes almost equal attention to the Philosophical Prolegomena as to the Biological Prolegomena arguing in the process for a synthesis between the sciences and the humanities as complementary expressions of human cognition The text edited by Lorenz's daughter is full of literary excesses although comprehensible to the lay reader it is not particularly enjoyable to read Still such a book's value cannot be measured by its popularity alone Important for any general science collection and indispensable for all academic or history of science collections Gregg Sapp Univ of Miami Lib Natural Science of the Human Species - an Introduction to theory of Species of Mind Colin Allen, Marc Bekoff, 1999-07-26 The heart of this book is the reciprocal relationship between philosophical theories of mind and empirical studies of animal cognition Colin Allen a philosopher and Marc Bekoff a cognitive ethologist approach their work from a perspective that considers arguments about evolutionary continuity to be as applicable to the study of animal minds and brains as they are to comparative studies of kidneys stomachs and hearts Cognitive ethologists study the comparative evolutionary and ecological aspects of the mental phenomena of animals Philosophy can provide cognitive ethology with an analytical basis for attributing cognition to nonhuman animals and for studying it and cognitive ethology can help philosophy to explain mentality in naturalistic terms by providing data on the evolution of cognition This interdisciplinary approach reveals flaws in common objections to the view that animals have minds The heart of the book is this reciprocal relationship between philosophical theories of mind and empirical studies of animal cognition All theoretical discussion is carefully tied to case studies particularly in the areas of antipredatory vigilance and social play where there are many points of contact with philosophical discussions of intentionality and representation Allen and Bekoff make specific suggestions about how to use philosophical theories of intentionality as starting points for empirical investigation of animal minds and they stress the importance of studying animals other than nonhuman primates The Nature of Classification J.
