Stepping Inside The Classroom Through Personal Narratives:

Stepping Inside the Classroom Through Personal Narratives Darren James Smith, 1999 Stepping Inside the Classroom Through Personal Narratives provides a heartfelt account of the life that exists within the American classroom. It achieves this by chronicling the experiences and perceptions of two high school students and their teacher over the course of a semester art history class. In the process, it celebrates the ideas and voices of students and teachers, enabling the reader to understand their very different lives. The personal stories presented here will promote an understanding of the social and psychological aspects of education today and ultimately has the potential to contribute to the development of higher caliber learning environments.

Culturally Responsive Literacy Instruction Dorothy J. O'Shea, Festus E. Reducing Hate Through Multicultural Education and Transformation Festus E. Obiakor, 2023-04-01 Reducing Hate through Multicultural Education and Transformation is a book that reminds us that we live in a complex world and at micro and macro levels the demography is changing and people are worried about the current state of affairs, their future, and the future of their children. At local, national, and global levels, there appears to be unsteadiness, crises, and struggles in our economies, politics, and societies. Disruptions, disasters, and deaths are visible at all spectra of our lives, and our leaders seem unready, unwilling, underprepared, and unprepared to bring us together to solve our problems for the common good. Even when we make efforts to respond to human differences and multicultural valuing, they seem to be half-baked cakes that are unready for consumption, and there continues to be visible hateful actions that devastate our sacred existence. While these hateful actions have filtered into our families, schools, communities, nation, and world, we pretend to solve them by engaging in phony community relations, fraudulent multiculturalism, and unreasonable wokeness to masquerade our inefficiency, inflexibility, prejudice, and jaundiced views. Reducing Hate through Multicultural Education and Transformation provides cutting edge solutions for innovative educators and leaders. Yes, hate is a controversial construct that is rarely researched, studied, and discussed in education. The reason is that teachers and related professionals are supposedly very liberal people who cannot hate their culturally and linguistically diverse CLD students, parents, and colleagues. And the lingering question is: can a teacher who is always liberal be also hateful? This question seems legitimate, and to answer it, we must look deeper into traditional presumptions. The reality is that White educators and professionals who dominate the educational profession are human beings who live in their respective White dominated communities. As a result, they teach or lead people whom they do not know very well. If not, why should CLD individuals continue to experience hateful misidentifications, misassessments, miscategorizations, misplacements, and misinstructions in school programs? And why should disproportionate placements of CLD learners with special education needs, gifts, and talents, and emotional/behavioral problems continue to be burning issues in education? This book provides outside the box solutions Language in Multicultural Education Farideh Salili, Rumjahn Hoosain, 2005-03-01 Many books on multicultural education focus on a country and provide in-depth discussion of issues pertinent to that country at the time. Alternately, understanding of multicultural education is sought through comparison between a society of special interest and a reference society, often the United States. An interesting recent example is Constructing Multicultural Education in a Diverse Society by Ilghiz Sinagatullin, 2003, drawing on the author's knowledge of Russia and more particularly the Republic of Bashkortostan, itself an ethnically and culturally diverse part of Russia. The approach taken in this volume is to focus on an aspect of diversity and look at its ramifications across the world. This provides an understanding of the nature of multicultural education itself as well as insights into local issues through the experience of other places.

Feminist Cyberspaces Sharon Collingwood, Alvina E. Quintana, Caroline J. Smith, 2012-01-17 Feminist Cyberspaces: Pedagogies in Transition is a collection of essays exploring the ways in which new media technologies are being used in the feminist classroom. The collection has been structured to reflect the multifaceted nature of education today. Learning takes place on a personal level through independent study and social media; it takes place at a local level in our classrooms and lecture halls, but it is also increasingly taking place on a global scale as new technologies foster international collaboration between individuals and organizations. In addition, there is a growing acceptance of learning in the collaborative 3D classrooms of virtual worlds. These educational spaces are not mutually exclusive, as the contributions to this volume make clear. The anthology explores how technology is being used in antiviolence teaching, art education, HIV and AIDS education, and other specialized topics, but it also gives many examples of innovations in teaching introductory courses. The technology used ranges from the implementation of course management systems for large university classes to the use of digital storytelling in small groups outside the university. It also explores technology for removing barriers to people with disabilities in both traditional and online classrooms. The collection is not a how-to book, but it does use practical experience as a basis for feminist theorizing of the classroom. All of the essays look at the use of new technology in the light of feminist pedagogy, seeking new ways to foster provocative, creative, and non-hierarchical learning that transcends the physical boundaries of the university.

It Even Happens in "Good" Schools Festus E. Obiakor, 2001-05-14 This book offers case studies, observations, and practical, culturally responsive solutions to the challenges presented by diversity in the classroom By telling stories and asking questions the book explains that progress is slow moving and that quality equity and fair appropriate treatment are often very hard to find even in good schools Arguing that all schools must respond to pleas for excellence and quality the book explains that this will not happen without concern for diversity as well The book is thematically divided to address educational phases Although the phases may appear independent they are mutually inclusive The book s seven chapters are 1 Redefining Good Schools 2 Classroom Identification and Referrals 3 Classroom Assessments and Accountabilities 4 Classroom Labels and Categories 5 Classroom Placements and Inclusions 6 Classroom Instructions and Interventions and 7 The Dream School The Good School Contains 112
