Strategic Planning For Exploration Management

Strategic Planning For Exploration Management:

Strategic Planning for Exploration Management Allen N. Quick, Neal A. Buck, 2012-12-06 In all the industries in which I do management consulting each manager considers his own industry to be truly unique. Of course each is different in some respects and each has its own quirks and features. However the similarities among industries far outweigh the differences. The critical dynamics and the management issues have a great deal in common. However there are I believe two industries or segments of industries that have an important critical uniqueness that does distinguish them from the rest. One of these is the exploration for undiscovered natural resources notably for oil and gas the other is research. In these two industry segments the competition is not nearly so much one firm against another as it is each firm against nature or if you prefer against the unknown. This uniqueness not only sets these two industry segments apart from the rest it also helps us to see what they have in common with each other. Pure scientific talent ability and genius have direct commercial value. We do not have the zero sum game of competition in the marketplace. A discovery by one firm does not usually perceptibly lessen the opportunity of a competitor for a discovery. On the contrary a discovery by one firm usually increases the knowledge of the whole industry increasing competitors opportunity for discovery. We see the source of continuing life for the rest of the firm. Energy

Harbaugh, J.C.

Davis, J. Wendebourg, 1995-11-22 The petroleum industry is enduring difficult financial times because of the continuing depressed price of crude oil on the world market. This has caused major corporate restructuring and reductions in staff throughout the industry. Because oil exploration must now be done with fewer people under more difficult economic constraints it is essential that the most effective and efficient procedures be used. Computing Risk for Oil Prospects describes how prospect risk assessment predicting the distribution of financial gains or losses that may result from the drilling of an exploration well can be done using objective procedures implemented on personal computers. The procedures include analyses of historical data interpretation of geological and geophysical data and financial calculations to yield a spectrum of the possible consequences of decisions. All aspects of petroleum risk assessment are covered from evaluating regional resources through delineating an individual prospect to calculation of the financial consequences of alternative decisions and their possible results. The bottom lines are given both in terms of the probable volumes of oil that may be discovered and the expected monetary returns. Statistical procedures are linked with computer mapping and interpretation algorithms which feed their results directly into routines for financial analysis. The programs in the included library of computer programs are tailored to fit seamlessly together and are designed for ease and simplicity of operation. The two diskettes supplied are IBM
