Strategies For Homeland Defense:

Strategy for Homeland Defense and Civil Support U. S. Department of Defense, 2014-10-31
Protecting the United States from direct attack is the highest priority of the Department of Defense. The military has traditionally secured the United States by protecting power overseas. Strategy for Homeland Defense and Civil Support, 2005. Strategies for homeland defense : a compilation by the Committee on Foreign Relations, United States Senate, National Strategy for Homeland Security United States. Office of Homeland Security, 2002. National strategy for homeland security, 2002. This document is the first National Strategy for Homeland Security. The purpose of the Strategy is to mobilize and organize our Introduction to Homeland Defense and Defense Support of Civil Authorities (DSCA). Bert B. Tussing, Robert McCreight, 2014-11-24. The application of our Armed Forces within the states and territories of the United States is far from intuitive. The challenges of defending the country against assaults within the homeland are much more complex than engaging our enemies on foreign soil. Likewise, the introduction of the military's appreciable capabilities in response to disasters. Introduction to Homeland Defense and Defense Support of Civil Authorities (DSCA). Bert B. Tussing, Robert McCreight, 2014-11-24. The application of our Armed Forces within the states and territories of the United States is far from intuitive. The challenges of defending the country against assaults within the homeland are much more complex than engaging our enemies on foreign soil. Likewise, the introduction of the military's appreciable capabilities in response to disasters, be they natural or manmade, comes with authorities and restrictions reflective of an American ethos that will always hold those forces as the servants of the people, never their overseers. Introduction to Homeland Defense and Defense Support of Civil Authorities (DSCA). The U.S. Military's Role to Support and Defend examines the requirements and regulations that guide the utilization of our forces in the domestic environment. Topics include: The importance of the distinctions between homeland security, homeland defense, and Defense Support of Civil Authorities as they pertain to both authorities and responsibilities; The deliberately subservient position of the military to civil authorities when engaged in response and recovery operations following a disaster; The unique relationship between the United States Navy and the United States Coast Guard in a mutually supportive effort that bridges requirements between defense on the high seas and law enforcement in territorial waters; The air defense mission over the United States, orchestrating manned aircraft, unmanned aircraft, and cruise missiles against threats of the same nature; The exceptional challenges that would be associated with the application of land forces in a defense mission on American soil; The development of the CBRN (Chemical, Biological, Radiological, Nuclear) Enterprise as a function of the nation's focus on preventing, responding to, and recovering from a Weapons of Mass Destruction attack; New challenges emerging in the domestic environment that will call for the application of military resources to include the Arctic, complex catastrophes, and cybersecurity issues. Technology Strategies for Homeland Security: Adaptation and Coevolution of Offense and Defense, 2009. Terrorists' technology choices are a key part of their ability to create fear in target populations and audiences Terrorists interaction with technologies that perform key functions within modern society e g communications or infrastructures can also be strategies through which they can produce damage and fear It is the way the terrorist chooses to apply technologies to cause death and destruction that sets him apart from the criminal who may be comparably armed and equipped but who uses those technologies for personal or material gain For homeland security organizations 1 responses to terrorist threats frequently gravitate toward the use of defensive technical systems Significant sums of public and private funds have been allocated for development and fielding of security technologies and reduction of societal vulnerabilities Making good decisions about investments in defensive systems many of which are costly and intended to reduce the threat of terrorist attack over the long term requires understanding the interaction between the technology strategies of the terrorist and those of the organizations charged with defending against them

Homeland Security Norman J. Rabkin (au),2005-09 Homeland Defense: DOD Needs to Address Gaps in Homeland Defense and Civil Support Guidance U. S. Government Office,2013-03-15 The Department of Defense DOD protects the U S homeland through two distinct but interrelated missions 1 homeland defense which defends against threats such as terrorism weapons of mass destruction and cyber incidents and 2 civil support which involves supporting other federal agencies in responding to major domestic disasters emergencies and special events DOD has issued and updated several key pieces of doctrine policy and strategy for homeland defense and civil support but it has not updated its primary Strategy for Homeland Defense and Civil Support since it was initially issued in 2005 and does not have a process similar to that for its joint publications and directives to do so The Joint Staff determined in August 2010 that joint publications on homeland defense needed a complete revision The joint publication on civil support is also being revised U S Northern Command the combatant command responsible for homeland defense is revising these publications to reflect changes in national and department priorities and to incorporate lessons learned from exercises and events such as Hurricane Katrina Still such key national and department level strategies and significant events are not reflected in DOD s strategy in part because the Office of the Assistant Secretary of Defense for Homeland Defense and Americas Security Affairs does not have a process for periodically assessing the currency of its homeland defense and civil support strategy and ensuring that needed updates are completed in a timely manner Reliance on an outdated strategy could hinder DOD s ability to effectively plan for and respond to major disasters and emergencies DOD issued some guidance on the dual status commander construct through which during a civil support incident or special event a single military officer has authority over both National Guard and active duty military personnel serving as a link between state and federal forces Nevertheless gaps in guidance remain because DOD has not yet developed comprehensive policies and procedures regarding the use and availability of dual status commanders including specific criteria and conditions for when and how a state governor and the Secretary of Defense would mutually appoint a commander As a result DOD s ability to adequately prepare for and effectively use dual status commanders for a range of civil support events including those affecting multiple states may be hindered While a 2010 DOD Directive a 2007 joint publication and an agreement with the Department of Homeland Security DHS provide some details on how DOD should respond to requests for civil support in the event of a domestic cyber incident they do not address some aspects of how DOD will provide support during a response First DOD has not clarified its roles and responsibilities and chartering directives for DOD s Offices of the Assistant Secretaries for Global Strategic Affairs and for Homeland Defense and Americas Security Affairs outline conflicting and overlapping roles and responsibilities Second DOD has not ensured that its civil support guidance is aligned with national plans and preparations for domestic cyber incidents Consequently it is unclear whether DOD will be adequately prepared to support DHS during a cyber incident This report makes several recommendations to address gaps in DOD's guidance for homeland defense and civil support including for DOD to assess and when needed update its primary strategy develop implementation guidance on the dual status commander construct and align guidance on preparing for and responding to domestic cyber incidents with national level guidance to include roles and responsibilities
