Leo F. Fenzel,1988 9/11: Mental Health in the Wake of Terrorist Attacks Yuval Neria,Raz Gross,Randall D.

Marshall,Ezra S. Susser,2006-09-14 Does terrorism have a unique and significant emotional and behavioral impact among adults and children In what way does the impact of terrorism exceed the individual level and affect communities and specific professional groups and test different leadership styles How were professional communities of mental health clinicians policy makers and researchers mobilized to respond to the emerging needs post disaster What are the lessons learned from the work conducted after 9 11 and the implications for future disaster mental health work and preparedness efforts Yuval Neria and his team are uniquely placed to answer these questions having been involved in modifying ongoing trials and setting up new ones in New York to address these issues straight after the attacks No psychiatrist mental health professional or policy maker should be without this book Stress Robert Kugelman,1992-09-17 Stress names a kind of grief unique to the modern period a grief perpetually unresolved evoked by the rapid and relentless changes characteristic of modernity Because our grief is always unresolved the passion of mourning is perpetually productive Stress is also a discourse a mutation of experience by the external power of speech a power that can devour what it articulates Yet it was not until World War II when the psychiatric difficulties of pilots and bombers in particular brought stress into the open that stress became a topic of medical and psychological research and a named cause of disorders The term borrows the notions of pressure and tension from the engineering world The seeds of stress are found around 1750 when the notion of luxury changed in meaning from a vice to be avoided to a virtue to be vigorously pursued Before this time human existence differed from ours in such a way that we detect no stress or anything like it The book includes a phenomenology of the experience of stress a history of the construction of engineered grief and an assessment of stress management programs Because such programs seek to make us comfortable with stress they do not move us to bring the work of grieving to a resolution This book will be of interest to post modernists phenomenologists social constructionists hermeneuticists deconstructionists social historians and medical historians Cancer Survivors in Later Life Gary T. Deimling,2025 Cancer has been called a disease of the elderly with advancing age as a risk factor for most cancers and half of all malignancies occurring after the age of 65 With the recent advances in medical care people are living longer after cancer treatments The number of cancer survivors is projected to reach 19 million by 2024 Cancer Survivors in Later Life blends existing research with the findings from a major National Cancer Institute funded study focusing on older adult cancer survivors and the challenges they face The book is organized into eight chapters that reflect some of the key themes in larger psycho social oncology medical oncology gerontology and family research literatures These include cancer and aging cancer survivorship in later life cancer and the social self health and quality of life functioning and disability psycho social distress adaptation appraisal and coping and altered life perspectives after cancer Within each chapter the theme introduced is discussed in terms of the prominent foundational and recent research published by those working in the field This is supplemented by findings from over 20 years of Dr Deimling's research in collaboration with colleagues at Cancer Survivors Research Program CSRP at Case Western Reserve In addition to the quantitative data presented each chapter provides narratives that draw on the lived experiences of respondents in these studies in their own words making Cancer Survivors in Later Life a multifaceted resource Readers will find it a state of the art reference for studying the key challenges older adult survivors face in terms of their health living with cancer and coping with its after effects Handbook of Cross-Cultural and Multicultural Personality Assessment Richard H.
