The Industrial Archaeology of North-west England Owen Ashmore, 1982 Manufacturing the Cloth of the World Roger Holden, 2017 This well illustrated book is the first comprehensive study of the weaving sector of the Lancashire cotton industry to be published The focus is on the development of weaving mills against the background of the economic development and organisation of the industry Hand loom weaving was carried out in domestic premises or small workshops Early power looms were installed in multi storey mills combined with spinning the characteristic form of single storey shed with north light roof used solely for weaving developing later The construction power systems and layout of these mills are considered in detail The book is based on original research looking at both the mills themselves and documentary sources including plans and company records Industry and Innovation W.H. Chaloner, 2018-01-12 This volume first published in 1990 commemorates one of the most notable economic historians of his age Professor W H Chaloner taught in the History Department of the University of Manchester from 1945 to 1981 He preferred the article to the book as the most appropriate vehicle of publishing the results of his research From 1938 to 1983 he wrote over 120 articles and prefaces most of which appeared in historical journals and in the transactions of learned societies. These essays collected here cover a long period of time from the Industrial Revolution to problems of the inter war years in the twentieth century They deal with a very wide range of topics for Professor Chaloner was an authority on business urban transport social and agricultural history of Regional Identity Edward Royle, 1998 As regionalism assumes new importance in Britain and throughout the EU this work brings together historians and geographers to offer regional perspectives on Britain that avoid both the traditional parochialism of local history and the generalizations of a national approach The Ethics of Fur Andrew Linzey, Clair Linzey, 2023-07-24 This is the first multidisciplinary book that addresses the ethics of fur Whatever might have been true of the past the production of fur is now morally problematic in terms of both necessity and suffering There is no necessity in killing animals for nonessential purposes such as adornment fashion or vanity. The argument for utility simply doesn t hold up Alternative clothing is now readily available enduring and less costly Worse still since we know that the animals exploited are sentient causing them suffering or making animals liable to suffering is arguably intrinsically wrong The purpose of this volume is to open up and advance further the ethical political and specifically legislative endeavors now moving at pace and to encourage the anti fur movement That said there is much to learn from this book about the history culture and political arguments for and against fur that should interest scholars and students as well as those engaged on either side of the debate It is not common for academics to engage with pressing and contentious moral issues and we pay tribute to our eighteen contributors for leading the way

Curtis, 2016-05-13 Why in the pre industrial period were some settlements resilient and stable over the long term while other settlements were vulnerable to crisis Indeed what made certain human habitations more prone to decline or even total collapse than others All pre industrial societies had to face certain challenges exogenous environmental hazards such as earthquakes or plaques economic or political hazards from outside such as warfare or expropriation of property or hazards of their own making such as soil erosion or subsistence crises How then can we explain why some societies were able to overcome or negate these problems while other societies proved susceptible to failure as settlements contracted stagnated were abandoned or even disappeared entirely This book has been stimulated by the questions and hypotheses put forward by a recent disaster studies literature in particular by placing the intrinsic arrangement of societies at the forefront of the explanatory framework Essentially it is suggested that the resilience or vulnerability of habitation has less to do with exogenous crises themselves but on endogenous societal responses which dictate a the extent of destruction caused by crises and the capacity for society to protect itself and b the capacity to create a sufficient recovery By empirically testing the explanatory framework on a number of societies between the Middle Ages and the nineteenth century in England the Low Countries and Italy it is ultimately argued in this book that rather than the protective functions of the state or the market or the implementation of technological innovation or capital investment the most resilient human habitations in the pre industrial period were those than displayed an equitable distribution of property and a well balanced distribution of power between social interest groups Equitable distributions of power and property were the underlying conditions in pre industrial societies that all
