American Cinematographers in the Great War, 1914-1918 James W. Castellan,Ron van Doppen,Copper C. Graham,2015-02-09 A history of American cameramen covering the news of World War I from the dangerous front line and the risk of execution to red tape and censorship At the start of hostilities in World War I when the United States was still neutral American newsreel companies and newspapers sent a new kind of journalist the film correspondent to Europe to record the Great War These pioneering cameramen accustomed to carrying the Kodaks and Graflexes of still photography had to lug cumbersome equipment into the trenches Facing dangerous conditions on the front they also risked summary execution as supposed spies while navigating military red tape censorship and the business interests of the film and newspaper companies they represented Based on extensive research in European and American archives American Cinematographers in the Great War 1914-1918 follows the adventures of these cameramen as they managed to document and film the atrocities around them in spite of enormous difficulties The first book to explore the work and working conditions of American cinematographers active on the different fronts of the First World War It is a pioneering study which has already attracted a good deal of attention in the academic and archive world Historical Journal of Film Radio and Television Nuclear Fictions Michael Gardiner, 2024-11-30 In this book Michael Gardiner suggests that the conception of the war ending weapon was tied up with a longer commitment to unified space and singular progress The mission for total weapons can be seen rising with the highly technical defensive war of the later nineteenth century and passing through twentieth century atomic research then the targeting of the outsides of commercial empire and the post war consensus with deterrence as its foundation The end of the Cold War brought an opportunity to fully naturalise deterrence but also brought a tacit acceptance of nuclear violence while forms of violence against the individual were rigorously sought out If the world unifying role of deterrence has always been undermined by the rise of rival empires it has also been questioned by critical communities including the consensus sceptics of the 1950s 60s 1980s 90s Nuclear Criticism and readers of nuclear ism millennial campaigns for Scottish independence and twenty first century descriptions of nuclear colonialism Recently it has become more obvious that an Anglosphere concept of worldly deterrence was bound to a singular and ultimately nihilistic idea of progress bio Michael Gardiner is Professor in the Department of English and Comparative Literature at the University of Warwick
