Media Ethics, an Aboriginal Film and the Australian Film Commission Thomas Donovan, Brody T. Lorraine, 2002 This is a very strong and persuasive even compelling narrative Donovan's argument is clearly presented well documented and convincing to the reader Moreover the writer is able to demonstrate that this is a very important and significant issue far greater than the question of a single film being scuttled The relative merit of the film is not the central issue of the case but rather the question of whether the merit was fairly and openly determined by Australian Film Commission personnel and procedures

Expanding Suburbia Roger Webster, 2001-01-01 During the last few decades suburbia has grown enormously and become a phenomenon attracting the attention of scholars as well as practitioners by whom it is seen as an increasingly significant and complex area of modern life The essays in this volume consider a range of representations of suburban life from the late nineteenth century to the present day including fiction film and popular music drawn from America and Australia as well as Britain They explore and challenge traditional views of suburbia so that rather than a location of conformity and stereotypicality it can be viewed as a site of social conflict division and ambiguity as well as a source of significant creativity across a range of cultural texts The volume takes a thematic approach considering the rise of suburbia imagined and real suburbias alternative suburbias all of the essays have a strong historical dimension and the overall approach is characterized by interdisciplinarity

Australian National Cinema Tom O'Regan, 2005-08-10 Tom O'Regan's book is the first of its kind on Australian post war cinema It takes as its starting point

Bazin's question 'What is cinema?' and asks what the construct of a national cinema means. It looks at the broader concept from a different angle, taking film beyond the confines of art into the broader cultural world. O'Regan's analysis situates Australian cinema in its historical and cultural perspective, producing a valuable insight into the issues that have been raised by film policy, the cinema market place and public discourse on film production strategies. Since 1970, Australian film has enjoyed a revival. This book contains detailed critiques of the key films of this period and uses them to illustrate the recent theories on the international and Australian cinema industries. Its conclusions on the nature of the nation's cinema and the discourses within it are relevant within a far wider context: film as a global phenomenon.

Australian Cinema in the 1990s Ian Craven, 2012-10-12. This study is a collection of critical and scholarly analyses of the organisation of the Australian Film Industry since 1990. Particular emphasis is put on globalisation, authorship, national narrative and film aesthetics.

Adaptation and the New Art Film William H. Mooney, 2021-04-21. Since the 1990s, the expropriation of canonical works of cinema has been a fundamental dimension of art film exploration. Rainer Werner Fassbinder provides an early model of open adaptation of film classics, followed ever more boldly by the Coen Brothers, Chantal Akerman, Alex Carax, Todd Haynes, Florian Henckel von Donnersmarck, Baz Luhrmann, and Olivier Assayas. This book devotes chapters to each of these directors to examine how their films redeploy landmark precursors such as City Lights (1931), Citizen Kane (1941), Rome Open City (1945), All About Eve (1950), and Vertigo (1958) in order to probe our psychological, philosophical and historical situations in a postmodern société du spectacle. In broadly diverse ways, each of these directors complicates received notions of the past and its representation while probing the transformative media evolution and dislocation of the present in film art and in society.
