1. The first step in the process is to identify the problem. This involves a thorough inspection of the system and a determination of the cause of the problem. Once the cause has been identified, the next step is to develop a plan of action to address the problem. This plan should take into account the resources available and the time constraints. Once the plan has been developed, the next step is to implement the plan. This involves carrying out the tasks outlined in the plan and monitoring the progress of the work. Finally, the last step is to evaluate the results of the work and determine if the problem has been resolved. If the problem has not been resolved, the process should be repeated.
