Regulating Place Eran Ben-Joseph, Terry S. Szold, 2005-07-08 Tracing how codes arose when they did and how they were adapted over time the authors examine the increasing influence of regulatory codes over urban design and planning in the past century How Local Politics Shape Federal Policy Sarah S. Elkind, 2011-08-15 Focusing on five Los Angeles environmental policy debates between 1920 and 1950 Sarah Elkind investigates how practices in American municipal government gave business groups political legitimacy at the local level as well as unanticipated influence over federal politics Los Angeles s struggles with oil drilling air pollution flooding and water and power supplies expose the clout business has had over government Revealing the huge disparities between big business groups and individual community members in power influence and the ability to participate in policy debates Elkind shows that business groups secured their political power by providing Los Angeles authorities with much needed services including studying emerging problems and framing public debates As a result government officials came to view business interests as the public interest When federal agencies looked to local powerbrokers for project ideas and political support local business interests influenced federal policy too Los Angeles with its many environmental problems and its dependence upon the federal government provides a distillation of national urban trends Elkind argues and is thus an ideal jumping off point for understanding environmental politics and the power of business in the middle of the twentieth century
