Consumption and the World of Goods John Brewer,Roy Porter,2013-06-17 The study of past society in terms of what it consumes rather than what it produces is relatively speaking a new development The focus on consumption changes the whole emphasis and structure of historical enquiry While human beings usually work within a single trade or industry as producers as say farmers or industrial workers as consumers they are active in many different markets or networks And while history written from a production viewpoint has by chance or design largely been centred on the work of men consumption history helps to restore women o the mainstream The history of consumption demands a wide range of skills It calls upon the methods and techniques of many other disciplines including archaeology sociology social and economic history anthropology and art criticism But it is not simply a melting pot of techniques and skills brought to bear on a past epoch Its objectives amount to a new description of a past culture in its totality as perceived through its patterns of consumption in goods and services Consumption and the World of Goods is the first of three volumes to examine history from this perspective and is a unique collaboration between twenty six leading subject specialists from Europe and North America The outcome is a new interpretation of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries one that shapes a new historical landscape based on the consumption of goods and services Benjamin Collins and the Provincial Newspaper Trade in the Eighteenth Century Christine Y. Ferdinand,1997 This is a pioneering study of the English provincial newspaper and book trades in the eighteenth century Christine Ferdinand uses the first thoroughgoing study of the Salisbury Journal and its competitors to reveal how country newspapers worked within and influenced the developing information systems of a region The detailed revelations of a community s social economic literary and cultural interests extend well beyond Salisbury to the surrounding counties and to London A hitherto hidden commercial infrastructure shows the interdependent relationship between the writers and makers of newspapers the principal members of the London book trade and the new market for the printed word Behind these news networks was the entrepreneurial spirit of Benjamin Collins a figure of national importance who set up Salisbury s first bank established newspapers in London and the provinces wrote children s books with John Newbery and whose publishing interests brought him into contact with the literary and commercial life of London This fascinating study of the information networks of eighteenth century provincial life will be of interest to literary students and biographers as well as historians
