Women Police in a Changing Society Mangai Natarajan, 2016-02-11 Offering a fascinating account of the development of women police over the past twenty years this book refers to the author s extended research in India to examine how the Indian experience demonstrates a valuable alternative to the Anglo American model not only for traditional societies but for women police in the West as well With reference to the establishment in 1992 of all women units in Tamil Nadu this unique experiment proved highly successful in enhancing the confidence and professionalism of women officers and ensuring the effectiveness and efficiency of the police At a time when policing is being rethought all over the world not only in traditional societies the Tamil Nadu practice illustrates important lessons for western countries that are finding it increasingly difficult to recruit and retain women officers Natarajan s remarkable book is an important and original contribution to the literature on gendered policing which to date has concentrated almost exclusively on the US and British experience Policing: Toward an Unknown Future John Crank, Colleen Kadleck, 2013-12-16 The enclosed papers are the culmination of a project Dr John Crank and Dr Colleen Kadleck carried out assessing issues facing the police into the early 21st century The papers are future oriented in the sense that they anticipate trends visible today Everywhere the contributing scholars found that the organizational concept practice and function of the police were undergoing transition Yet the seeming state level hardening of the police function was ubiquitous Two themes were noteworthy On the one hand in developing or second world countries police face endemic problems of corruption organized crime and drugs Police in response are undergoing centralization and intensification of law enforcement activities In countries with first world economies Canada the United States and Australia contributors discovered trends toward expansion of the police function a trend described by Brodeur as toward high policing It reflects the growing reliance on surveillance for crime control and for the tracking of minority indigenous and immigrant populations in crime prevention efforts The results suggest that governments sometimes encouraged by their citizenry seem increasingly to rely on the police to deal with a broad array of social as well as criminal problems This book was originally published as a special issue of Police Practice and Research International Perspectives on Police Education and Training Perry Stanislas, 2013-10-30 Training and education constitutes the backbone of a significant amount of police activity and expenditure in developing the most important resources involved in policing work It also involves an array of actors and agencies such as educational institutions which have a long and important relationship with police organizations This book examines the role of education and training in the development of police in the contemporary world Bringing together specialist scholars and practitioners from around the world the book examines training methods in the UK the USA Australia Canada China France Hungary India the Netherlands St Lucia and Sweden The book throws light on important aspects of public service policing and new areas of public and private provision through the lens of training and development It will be of interest to policing scholars and those involved in professional and organizational development worldwide Police Responses to People with Mental Illnesses Duncan Chappell, 2014-07-16 According to the World Health Organisation during their lifetime more than one quarter of all individuals will develop one or more mental or behavioural disorders Given prevalence data like this it is not surprising that wherever they reside on the planet many persons suffering from a mental disorder or as is more commonly termed in popular parlance a mental illness are likely to come into contact with police at some stage in their lives Indeed research conducted in a number of countries suggests that about 10 per cent of all community police work involves some form of interaction with a person with a mental illness From a police perspective these encounters are not only frequent but also often sensitive and challenging Despite the difficulties associated with this important aspect of community policing surprisingly scant attention has been given to the development of empirically tested and established best practice approaches to managing police interactions with persons with mental illnesses The literature that does exist is principally derived from North American sources although more recent and interesting developments have been reported in Australia and the United Kingdom The principal aim of Police Responses to People with Mental Illnesses is to seek to reduce this gap in the literature by providing an international overview of some of the latest research and policy developments in the field and the challenges still to be confronted in many places in overcoming cultural and associated barriers to protecting the rights of the mentally ill This book was originally published as a special issue of Police Practice and Research An International Journal Police Reform from the Bottom Up Monique Marks, David Sklansky, 2014-04-10 What role can and should police unions and rank and file officers play in driving and shaping police reform Police unions and their members are often viewed as obstructionist and conservative not as change agents But reform efforts are much more likely to succeed when they are supported by the rank and file and line officers have knowledge skills and insights that can be invaluable in promoting reform Efforts to involve police unions and rank and file officers in police reform are less common than they should be but they are increasing and there is a good deal to learn about policing police reform and participatory management from the efforts made to date In this pioneering volume an international cross disciplinary collection of scholars and police unionists address a range of neglected questions both empirical and theoretical about the place of police officers themselves in the process of reform what it has been and what it could be They provide a fresh view of police reform as occurring from the bottom up rather than the top down This book will be highly useful for practitioners and scholars who have a serious interest in the possibilities and limits of police organizational change This book is based on special issues of Police Practice and Research and Policing and Society Police Social Work George T. Patterson, 2022-01-31 Grounded in contemporary social work practice approaches such as trauma informed practice cultural competency and systems theory this book provides a model for developing implementing and evaluating police social work and social service collaboration within the context of contemporary policing strategies The practice of professional social work in law enforcement agencies is increasingly becoming an important area of practice Police social work as it is known benefits community residents and assists law enforcement agencies with accomplishing community policing and other problem solving initiatives Throughout 13 chapters this book covers The practice of professional social work within law enforcement agencies The types of social problems addressed and characteristics of police social work collaborations Ethical and other practice issues that arise when collaborating with law enforcement agencies and required practice skills to address these issues An examination of collaborations formed between law enforcement agencies and social services agencies in which the service providers are not professional social workers A model for developing police social work collaborations and investigating collaboration effectiveness Expanded roles for police social work practice such as consultation officer selection training recruits and police officers and assisting their families Police Social Work provides a wealth of case studies and other reference material to prepare students for police social work practice as well as serving as a resource for police officers recruits and students majoring in policing Special Topics in Policing James F. Albrecht, Garth den Heyer, 2025-05-22 This edited volume provides a comprehensive exploration of five critical dimensions of policing with a particular focus on leadership and its role in addressing contemporary challenges in the field Through a multidisciplinary and global lens the chapters examine pressing issues including Addressing challenges in policing today Improving leadership in police executive positions Training police patrol personnel in leadership Enhancing police community collaboration Prioritizing police officer safety and wellness Grounded in sociological and theoretical frameworks this book analyzes these themes in depth offering innovative perspectives and evidence based policy recommendations This collection emphasizes the imperative of fostering professionalism organizational effectiveness and public trust in police institutions By engaging with these key issues the book seeks to advance understanding and propose actionable strategies to enhance the integrity and functionality of policing organizations worldwide and to promote leadership as a necessary qualification across all ranks Critical Issues in Policing Roger G. Dunham, Geoffrey P. Alpert, Kyle D. McLean, 2020-07-01 The eighth edition of this comprehensive collection includes carefully chosen articles with fresh perspectives on the most current trends in policing Critical Issues in Policing provides ready access to the brightest minds in the field of policing The 36 contributions sharpen understanding of the intricacies of police work and encourage readers to change from holding the police responsible for crime rates to holding them accountable for specific goals tasks and objectives The new edition continues its authoritative insightful coverage of complex elements of policing and presents vivid and pragmatic illustrations of law enforcement issues The anthology offers an alternative to traditional policing texts It covers philosophies of policing that guide discussions about police culture police misconduct use of force operational concerns and technological innovations European Journal of Policing Studies, 2018-07-31 Contents Introduction Antoinette Verhage Lieselot Bisschop and Wim Hardyns br Articles How to Police a Porous Fortress Monica den Boer 1 Abstract The purpose of this article is to provide an overview of the way in which the European Union has gradually but steadily built a security architecture based on the control of mobility and borders Different logics of policing are interwoven in several projects which are strongly interdependent with technological innovation Furthermore the European policing of mobility is primarily performed by mounting surveillance both inside and beyond European borders by means of which all forms of movement transactions travelling etc are subjected to intensive monitoring by multiple actors who are interlinked through strategies and systems The main finding is that border policing is shifting in a fundamental way from fixed to fluid from territorial to virtual and from physical to technological Hence paradoxically though mobility is strongly promoted as one of the main virtues of the European Union Europe s precautionary protection may be at ill ease with the free movement of people The article seeks to stimulate the knowledge and debate about deeper shifts in Europe s security apparatus and develops this from a law enforcement perspective Keywords Europe borders security mobility technology 1 Academic Dean at the Police Academy of The Netherlands Member of the Committee on European

Integration of the Advisory Council on International Affairs and Visiting Professor at the College of Europe in Bruges Police Science in Germany History and New Perspectives Joachim Kersten 1 and Ansgar Burchard 2 Abstract In the German speaking academic world Police Science Polizeiwissenschaft is a fairly new and little known area of social science Accordingly the academic status of police science is anything but firmly established but rather at a hybrid stage of development The very combination of policing and academic study research seems to remain largely incompatible not only to police managers but also to main stream sociology German police science differs substantially from the Anglo American Australian approach One main difference pertains to legal traditions others are due to historical and cultural developments that will be taken up in this descriptive essay However Anglo American Australian police theories have a lot to offer to German and European police scientists and this will be demonstrated For a future common approach to an evolving European police science similar descriptions will be required from other European countries to establish a comparative foundation of joint EU police studies Some of the principal dimensions of such a comparison will be sketched in this essay It concludes with a presentation of empirically based police studies carried out by instructors and Master students at the newly founded German Police University in Münster Topics are media coverage of clashes between police and demonstrators a typology of third party intervention in cases of assault in public places and COREPOL EU FP7 a comparative security research project aiming at an improvement of police minority relations through means of restorative justice programs Keywords Police Science in Germany accountability YouTube public relations Facebook civil courage violent assaults 1 Professor and Head of Department of the Department of Police Science at the German Police University Germany DAAD Professor at Northwestern University and guest professor in Maastricht NL in Sydney Australia and in Tokyo Japan 2 Senior Researcher for COREPOL EU FP7 Law Enforcement in the United States James A. Conser, Rebecca Paynich, Terry Gingerich, 2011-10-18 Law Enforcement Policing Security Human Rights and Policing Barry Devlin, Ralph Crawshaw, Tom Williamson, 2024-01-22 This is a unique book in that it distils the knowledge ideas and experience of three police professionals in the cause of a human rights based approach to policing The book is written for an audience of police officials human rights workers with an interest in human rights and policing and resource persons and teachers responsible for the education of police officials It provides a concise account and analysis of international human rights standards and best practice appertaining to key areas of policing and it sets out a clear strategy to bring about change organisational and thence behavioural within police organisations To focus on human rights and best practice in policing is not only important as an end in itself it is also important as a means of securing effective policing for the support of the community Effective policing in a democracy is dependent upon police respecting the rule of law and human rights Introduction to Criminal Justice Bradley D. Contemporary Issues in Law Enforcement and Policing Andrew Millie, Dilip K. Das, 2008-05-28 Rising terrorism and advances in technology along with new organizational strategies and investigative techniques have stretched the traditional role of the police officer Calls for strong intelligence driven paramilitary policing juxtaposed with a demand for softer community policing leave officers under increased pressure to be tough and National Institute of Justice Catalog, Developing and Maintaining Police-Researcher Partnerships to Facilitate Research Use Jeff Rojek, Peter Martin, Geoffrey P. Alpert, 2014-09-15 This Brief discusses methods to develop and maintain police researcher partnerships First the authors provide information that will be useful to police managers and researchers who are interested in creating and maintaining partnerships to conduct research work together to improve policing and help others understand the linkages between the two groups Then more specifically they describe how police managers consider and utilize research in policing and criminal justice and its findings from a management perspective in both the United States and Australia While both countries experience similar issues of trust acceptance utility and accountability between researchers and practitioners the experiences in the countries differ In the United States with 17 000 agencies the use of research findings by police agencies requires understanding diffusion and acceptance In Australia with a small number of larger agencies the problems of research practitioner partnerships have different translational issues including acceptance and application As long as police practitioners and academic researchers hold distinct and different impressions of each other the likelihood of positive cooperative and sustainable agreements between them will suffer NIJ Catalog ,1991 Contains information on criminal justice publications and other materials available from NIJ s information clearinghouse the National Criminal Justice Reference Service NCJRS and other sources
