Evangelista, 2025-02-24 Total Laryngectomy Assessment and Management of Respiration Swallowing and Alaryngeal Voice is a valuable guide for clinical training that provides transformative insights and practices to improve patient care advance the field of total laryngectomy and support speech language pathologists in their critical role as practitioners Clinicians utilize advanced techniques to evaluate and manage airway swallowing and voice dysfunction among individuals who have undergone total laryngectomy. These modern approaches not only enhance the clinical assessment and treatment possibilities but also consider patients' comprehensive needs including their vocational, social, and psychological aspects. This holistic perspective acknowledges that the impacts of laryngectomy extend beyond physiological issues, emphasizing the importance of addressing the complete well-being of patients. Written by leading experts in head and neck surgery, laryngology, and speech pathology, this text fills a significant gap in the literature by offering an all-inclusive approach to total laryngectomy rehabilitation. It converts informal knowledge into a structured, evidence-based format promoting best practices and improved patient outcomes. Through visual aids such as photos of videofluoroscopy, manometry, surgical techniques, and clinical practices, the text ensures that speech-language pathologists are well-equipped to support their patients in navigating the complexities of life after total laryngectomy.

Key Features: Comprehensive coverage of all aspects of total laryngectomy rehabilitation, including respiration, swallowing, and voice restoration. High-quality visuals of advanced instrumentation aiding in the assessment and treatment of laryngectomy-related issues. Authored by leading experts in head and neck surgery, laryngology, and speech pathology. Designed as both an essential reference for troubleshooting complex clinical cases and a supplementary resource for graduate medical and nursing education. Videos showcasing videofluoroscopy, esophageal balloon dilation, and techniques for tracheoesophageal puncture tract troubleshooting.

Cumulated Index Medicus ,1974      Head and Neck Cancer Elizabeth C. Ward,Corina J. van As-Brooks,2024-06-18

The past decade has seen the continued advancement of head and neck cancer care This third edition of Head and Neck Cancer Treatment Rehabilitation and Outcomes continues in the tradition of the prior editions providing the reader with the most up to date evidence relating to head and neck cancer its management and its rehabilitation from a multidisciplinary perspective As in the prior editions the content is enriched by the contributions of a large team of internationally recognized experts from both the medical and allied health communities Beginning with an update of what is known about cancer of the head and neck the reader is then introduced to the multidisciplinary team and the importance of the multidisciplinary approach in head and neck cancer management Chapters then cover nonsurgical and surgical management and the communication and swallowing management of cancers of the oral oropharynx and larynx hypopharynx Other chapters guide the reader through current best practice management of lymphedema tracheostomy nutrition neuromuscular disorders as well as psychological supports and survivorship A further six chapters are dedicated specifically to supporting the laryngectomy patient population and their complex rehabilitation needs The final chapter presents the ever expanding world of technology and its use in the management and delivery of head and neck cancer care Together these chapters provide the core theoretical and clinical knowledge for healthcare professionals managing patients with head and neck cancer The content has also been presented at a level suitable for both undergraduate and graduate students New to the Third Edition All chapters have been revised and updated with relevant research and clinical insights to reflect the current state of practice New chapters have been created to cover in more depth specific content relating to neuromuscular management lymphedema management and psychological supports New collaborators have joined the author groups bringing new insights and learnings All chapters are illuminated with clinical images illustrations and or case studies      Clinical Care and Rehabilitation in Head and Neck Cancer Philip C. Doyle,2019-03-21 Malignancies involving structures of the head and neck frequently impact the most fundamental aspects of human existence namely those functions related to voice and speech production eating and swallowing Abnormalities in voice production and in some instances its complete loss are common following treatment for laryngeal voice box cancer Similarly speech eating and swallowing may be dramatically disrupted in those where oral structures e g the tongue jaw hard palate pharynx etc are surgically ablated to eliminate the cancer Consequently the range and degree of deficits that may be experienced secondary to the treatment of head and neck cancer HNCa are often substantial This need is further reinforced by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention who have estimated that the number of individuals who will be newly diagnosed with HNCa will now double every 10 years This estimate becomes even more critical given that an increasing number of those who are newly diagnosed will be younger and will experience the possibility of long term survival post treatment Contemporary rehabilitation efforts for those treated for HNCa increasingly demand that clinicians actively consider and address multiple issues. Beyond the obvious concerns specific to any type of cancer, i.e. the desire for curative treatment, clinical efforts that address physical, psychological, communicative, and social consequences secondary to HNCa treatment are essential components of all effective rehabilitation programs. Comprehensive HNCa rehabilitation ultimately seeks to restore multiple areas of functioning in the context of the disabling effects of treatment. In this regard, rehabilitation often focuses on restoration of function while reducing the impact of residual treatment-related deficits on the individual's overall functioning, well-being, quality of life (QOL), and ultimately optimize survivorship. Regardless of the treatment methods pursued for HNCa, e.g. surgery, radiotherapy, chemoradiation, or combined methods, additional problems beyond those associated with voice, speech, eating, and swallowing frequently exist. For example, post-treatment changes in areas such as breathing, maintaining nutrition, limitations in physical capacity because of surgical reconstruction, such as deficits in shoulder functioning, concerns specific to cosmetic alterations, and associated disfigurement and deficits in body image are common. Those treated for HNCa also may experience significant pain, depression, stigma, and subsequent social isolation. Concerns of this type have led clinicians and researchers to describe HNCa as the most emotionally traumatic form of cancer. It is therefore essential that clinicians charged with the care and rehabilitation of those treated for HNCa actively seek to identify, acknowledge, and systematically address a range of physical, psychological, social, and communication problems. Efforts that systematically consider this range of post-treatment sequelae are seen as critical to any effort directed toward enhanced rehabilitation outcomes. Actively and purposefully addressing post-treatment challenges may increase the likelihood of both short- and long-term rehabilitation success in this challenging clinical population. Current information suggests that successful clinical outcomes for those with HNCa are more likely to be realized when highly structured yet flexible interdisciplinary programs of care are pursued. Yet contemporary educational resources that focus not only on management of voice, speech, eating, and swallowing disorders but also address issues such as shoulder dysfunction due to neck dissection, the significant potential for cosmetic alterations, can offer a much broader perspective on rehabilitation. Contemporary surgical treatment frequently involves reconstruction with extensive procedures that require donor sites that include both soft tissue from a variety of locations, e.g. forearm, thigh, etc., as well as bone, e.g. the scapula. Collectively, resources that address these issues and many other concerns, and the resultant social implications of HNCa and its treatment, can serve to establish a comprehensive framework for clinical care. Consequently, providing a highly specialized and comprehensive educational resource specific to HNCa rehabilitation is currently needed. The proposed edited book is designed to address this void in a single authoritative resource that is also accessible to the clinical readership. Integral to this proposed book is information that guides clinical approaches to HNCa rehabilitation, in addition to offering emphasis on the direct impact of changes in voice, speech, and swallowing, and the impact of such losses on outcomes. Finally, while several other published sources currently exist (see attached list), the emphasis of these books is directed either toward the identification and diagnosis of malignant disease clinical and surgical pathology associated efforts directed toward biomedical aspects of cancer and its treatment or those with a focus on a single clinical problem or approach to rehabilitation Therefore the content of the proposed multi chapter text centers on delivering a systematically structured comprehensive and clinically oriented presentation on a range of topics that will provide readers at a variety of levels with a strong well integrated and empirically driven foundation to optimize the clinical care of those with HNCa The primary audience for this textbook is undergraduate and graduate level students in Speech Language Pathology as well as practitioners especially hospital based practitioners in Speech Language Pathology other key audiences include junior and senior level otolaryngology residents and fellows translational researchers in head and neck cancer related medical specialists e g radiation oncology oncology nurses and potentially other rehabilitation professionals such as occupational therapists counseling psychologists social workers and rehabilitation counselors
