Oppenheimer,Christopher Y. Olivola,2011-01-19 Americans donate over 300 billion dollars a year to charity but the psychological factors that govern whether to give and how much to give are still not well understood Our understanding of charitable giving is based primarily upon the intuitions of fundraisers or correlational data which cannot establish causal relationships By contrast the chapters in this book study charity using experimental methods in which the variables of interest are experimentally manipulated As a result it becomes possible to identify the causal factors that underlie giving and to design effective intervention programs that can help increase the likelihood and amount that people contribute to a cause For charitable organizations this book examines the efficacy of fundraising strategies commonly used by nonprofits and makes concrete recommendations about how to make capital campaigns more efficient and effective Moreover a number of novel factors that influence giving are identified and explored opening the door to exciting new avenues in fundraising For researchers this book breaks novel theoretical ground in our understanding of how charitable decisions are made While the chapters focus on applications to charity the emotional social and cognitive mechanisms explored herein all have more general implications for the study of psychology and behavioral economics This book highlights some of the most intriguing surprising and enlightening experimental studies on the topic of donation behavior opening up exciting pathways to cross cutting the divide between theory and practice Social Development as Preference Management Rachel Karniol,2010-04-12 Karniol engagingly presents social development in children through the language of preference management Conversational excerpts garnered from around the world trace how parents talk about preferences how infants and children s emergent language conveys their preferences how children themselves are impacted by others preferences and how they in turn influence the preferences of adults and peers The language of preferences is used to crack into altruism aggression and morality which are ways of coming to terms with other people s preferences Behind the scenes is a cognitive engine that uses transformational thought conducting temporal imaginal and mental transformations to figure out other people s preferences and to find more sophisticated means of outmanoeuvring others by persuading them and playing with one s own mind and other people s minds when preferences are blocked This book is a unique and sometimes amusing must read for anyone interested in child development language acquisition socialisation and communication Fighting Words
