Production Engineering, 1982 Design of Intelligent Multi-Agent Systems Rajiv Khosla, Nikhil Ichalkaranje, 2013-07-25

There is a tremendous interest in the design and applications of agents in virtually every area including avionics business internet engineering health sciences and management There is no agreed one definition of an agent but we can define an agent as a computer program that autonomously or semi autonomously acts on behalf of the user In the last five years transition of intelligent systems research in general and agent based research in particular from a laboratory environment into the real world has resulted in the emergence of several phenomenon These trends can be placed in three categories namely humanization architectures and learning and adaptation These phenomena are distinct from the traditional logic centered approach associated with the agent paradigm Humanization of agents can be understood among other aspects in terms of the semantics quality of design of agents The need to humanize agents is to allow practitioners and users to make more effective use of this technology It relates to the semantic quality of the agent design Further context awareness is another aspect which has assumed importance in the light of ubiquitous computing and ambient intelligence The widespread and varied use of agents on the other hand has created a need for agent based software development frameworks and design patterns as well architectures for situated interaction negotiation e commerce e business and informational retrieval

Finally traditional agent designs did not incorporate human like abilities of learning and adaptation
