Early Christian Writings Andrew Louth,1987-04-30 The writings in this volume shed a glimmer of light in an otherwise dark period on the emerging traditions and organizations of the infant Church They are a selection from a group known as the Apostolic Fathers so called because several of the authors were most likely disciples of the Apostles themselves Like much of the New Testament their writings take the form of letters and for the most part deal with practical problems of the life of the early Church as it struggled in the face of persecution to establish itself in the Roman world They give us a picture of Christianity still drawing on the theology and traditions of its parent religion Judaism

The Spirit of Early Christian Thought Robert Louis Wilken,2003-01-01 Many of the problems afflicting American education are the result of a critical shortage of qualified teachers in the classrooms The teacher crisis is surprisingly resistant to reforms and is getting worse This analysis of the causes underlying the crisis seeks to offer concrete affordable proposals for effective reform Vivian Troen and Katherine Boles two experienced classroom teachers and education consultants argue that because teachers are recruited from a pool of underqualified candidates given inadequate preparation and dropped into a culture of isolation without mentoring support or incentives for excellence they are programmed to fail Half quit within their first five years Troen and Boles offer an alternative a model of reform they call the Millennium School which changes the way teachers work and improves the quality of their teaching When teaching becomes a real profession they contend more academically able people will be drawn into it colleges will be forced to improve the quality of their education and better prepared teachers will enter the classroom and improve the profession
