

Speaking and Listening Skills

Giving a speech can be exciting, but it can also be a little bit scary. If you are afraid to stand up and speak to a group, you are not alone. It is a very common fear, but one that you can overcome.

Speaking in public is a type of performing. You may already have experience with “performing” on the basketball court, in a band, in a play, or even with a group of friends. With planning and practice, you will be able to perform in front of people without being nervous.

The purpose of a speech is to share information or feelings about a topic. Being able to share your ideas clearly with others is a skill you will use now, in school and at home, and later, when you enter the world of work.

What’s Ahead

This chapter will help you plan, write, and present a speech of your own. You will also learn how to listen politely and effectively to other speakers.

Common Core Standards and English Language Arts Grades 6 -12: Strategies for Student Success Toby Karten, 2013-01-01 The tri-fold laminated reference guide Common Core Standards English Language Arts Strategies for Student Success Grades 6-12 by Toby Karten presents an at-a-glance overview of the CCSS for English Language Arts (ELA) for students in grades 6-12. It is intended to help middle and high school teachers understand the organization and application of the standards for diverse students, including those with special needs. Topics covered in the guide include: Challenges of the cross-disciplinary design of CCSS for ELA at the secondary level; College and career readiness (CCR) CCR anchor standards for reading literature (RL) and informational text (RI); CCR anchor standards for writing (W); CCR anchor standards for speaking and listening (SL); CCR anchor standards for language (L); Differentiating instruction for students at different reading levels; Models for measuring and evaluating text complexity; Strategies for helping students with disabilities achieve ELA standards. The CCSS for ELA raise the bar to ensure students master the reading, writing, speaking, and listening and language skills they need to be college and career ready in literacy. They will yield effective outcomes for all students, including those with disabilities, if educators creatively and consistently embrace them and connect them to all of their students.
