Revisiting the Assessment of Second Language Abilities: From Theory to Practice Sahbi Hidri, 2018-01-12 This book presents an overview of revisiting the assessment of language abilities. It also showcases how the measurement of such constructs can result in negative or positive washback and how outcomes might be conducive to repercussions that decide on the future of many stakeholders. The 23 chapters were selected among tens of chapters received from different contexts that addressed the issue of revisiting the assessment of language abilities such as Tunisia, Ukraine, Algeria, Russia, KSA, Sudan, Egypt, Canada, Kurdistan, UK, USA, Iran, Turkey, etc. These contexts have highlighted the necessity to revisit the different constructs which should be assessed with a clear and straightforward foundation on students' learning objectives and their actual language ability. To do so, most of the chapters present hands-on use of relevant statistical tests that might serve in revisiting the construct definition both theoretically and operationally. Perhaps the sole and intricate question that the authors of these contributions ask is what it means to revisit the assessment of the construct of individualized language ability and how. In addition, the book accentuates the momentousness and significance of reflecting on test fairness and validation as the mainspring and backbone for democratization of assessment. This book appeals to a broad readership such as English Language Teaching (ELT) practitioners, language teachers, students, testing organizations, policy makers, test designers, writers of test specifications, testing experts, researchers, program evaluators, especially in the Middle East and North Africa (MENA) as well as other international contexts.

Linear Models for Optimal Test Design Wim J. van der Linden, 2006-01-01 Over my nearly forty years of teaching and conducting research in the field of psychometric methods, I have seen a number of major technical advances that respond to pressing educational and psychological measurement problems. The development of criterion-referenced assessment was the first beginning in the late 1960s with the important work of Robert Glaser and Jim Popham in response to the need for assessments that considered candidate performance in relation to a well-defined body of knowledge and skills rather than in relation to a norm group. The development of criterion-referenced testing methodology with a focus on decision-theoretic concepts and methods, content validity, standard setting, and the recognition of the merits of both criterion-referenced and criterion-referenced assessments has tremendously influenced current test theory and testing. The second major advance was the introduction of item response theory (IRT) and associated models and their applications to replace classical test theory (CTT) and related practices. Beginning slowly in the 1940s and 1950s with the pioneering work of Frederic Lord, Allan Birnbaum, and Georg Rasch, by the 1970s the measurement journals were full of important research studies describing new IRT models, technical advances in model parameter estimation and model fit, and research on applications of IRT models to equating, test development, the detection of potentially biased test items, and adaptive testing. The overall goal has been to improve and expand measurement practices by overcoming several shortcomings of classical sical test theory dependence of test item statistics and reliability estimates on examinee samples dependence of examinee true score estimates on the particular choices of test items and the limitation in CTT of modeling examinee performance at the test level rather than at the item level

Setting Performance Standards in Europe Spiros Papageorgiou, 2009 This publication was awarded the Jacqueline Ross TOEFL Dissertation Award in 2009 Since its publication in 2001 the Common European Framework of Reference CEFR has been the most frequently cited performance standard in language testing in Europe To help test providers and users with score interpretation in relation to the CEFR levels the Council of Europe published the Manual for relating language examinations to the CEFR Even though the linking process set out in the Manual is primarily based on judgements by trained participants judgement making in this context remains largely unexplored The research presented in this book addresses this issue by employing quantitative and qualitative methods Despite the judges good understanding of how language ability progresses from lower to higher CEFR levels it was found that describing test content and examinee performance was not without problems and decision making was affected by a number of factors that were irrelevant to the judgement task The results provide a better understanding of judgement making during the CEFR linking process which has important implications for examination providers and users of CEFR aligned test scores

The Psychometrics of Standard Setting Mark Reckase, 2023-01-31 This book provides a unifying structure for the activities that fall under the process typically called standard setting on tests of proficiency Standard setting refers to the methodology used to identify performance standards on tests of proficiency The results from standard setting studies are critical for supporting the use of many types of tests The process is frequently applied to educational psychological licensure certification and other types of tests and examination systems The literature on procedures for standard setting is extensive but the methodology for standard setting has evolved in a haphazard way over many decades without a unifying theory to support the evaluation of the methods and the validation of inferences made from the standards This book provides a framework for going beyond specific standard setting methods to gain an understanding of the goals for the methods and how to evaluate whether the goals have been achieved The unifying structure provided in this book considers policy that calls for the existence of performance standards the relationship of proficiency test design to the policy and tasks assigned to subject matter experts to help them convert the policy to estimates of locations on the reporting score scale for the test The book provides guidance on how to connect the psychometric aspects of the standard setting process to the intentions of policy makers as expressed in policy statements Furthermore the structure is used to support validity arguments for inferences made when using standards Examples are provided to show how the unifying structure can be used to evaluate and improve standard setting methodology The 1984 Guide to the Evaluation of Educational Experiences in the Armed Services American Council on Education,1984 The Best Books William Swan Sonnenschein,1926 *H, Natural science.
