Special Needs Provision Rethinking Special Needs Education:

Rethinking Special Needs in Mainstream Schools Alan Dyson, Charles Gains, 2018-09-03 First published in 1993 This book critically analyses the state of provision for special needs exploring the problems faced by practitioners and suggesting that the area is fraught with such tensions that a radical reconceptualization is necessary It considers how the field may be rethought and developed over the next decade and presents examples of innovatory practice which point the way forward to future provision and which are illustrative of the themes raised throughout the book Must Inclusion be Special? Jonathan Rix, 2015-06-05 Must Inclusion be Special examines the discord between special and inclusive education and why this discord can only be resolved when wider inequalities within mainstream education are confronted It calls for a shift in our approach to provision from seeing it as a conglomeration of individualised needs to identifying it as a conglomeration of collective needs The author examines the political medical and cultural tendency of current times to focus upon the individual and contrasts this with the necessity to focus on context This book distinguishes the theoretical perspectives that are often associated with special or inclusive education and the broad range of interests which depend upon their ongoing development This examination leads to a problematisation of mainstream education provision our understanding of why social inequities emerge and how additional support can overcome these inequities Further chapters explore the underlying challenges which emerge from our use and understanding of the notions of special and inclusive outlining an alternative approach based upon a community of provision This approach recognises the interconnectedness of services and the significance of context and it encapsulates the aspiration of much international legislation for participation and inclusion for all But it also assumes that we tend towards diffuse practices services policies settings and roles spread across provision which is variously inclusive and exclusionary In seeking to create equitable participation for all support needs to shift its focus from the individual to this diffuse network of contexts Must Inclusion be Special emerges from the research base which problematises inclusion and special education drawing upon examples from many countries It also refers to the author's research into pedagogy language and policy and his experiences as a teacher and the parent of a child identified with special educational needs Special Education in Britain after Warnock John Visser, Graham Upton, 2018-09-03 First published in 1988 With the Education Reform Act 1988 firmly in place and impacting upon the education of children and young people with Special Educational Needs this book examines the issues that arose from its implementation It aims to promote debate as well as providing a record of the achievements in practice policy and provision in Britain since the Warnock Committee reported The challenges which remain or have been created since the introduction of the Education Act 1981 are also discussed Routledge Library Editions: Special Educational Needs Various, 2021-07-29 This set of 62 volumes originally published between 1951 and 1999 amalgamates a wide breadth of literature on Special Educational Needs with a particular focus on inclusivity class management and curriculum theory This collection of books from some of the leading

Notwithstanding this milestone recent studies have highlighted persistent disparities in the formulation and implementation of inclusion policies inadequacies in teacher preparation and imbalances in access to resources Factors such as these continue to pose challenges in achieving truly inclusive education for students with SEN Given this context it is both timely and essential to undertake a critical reassessment of the inclusive education agenda for this student group While policy frameworks may emphasize inclusion their real world translation often falls short leading to gaps between intention and realization Moreover the limited enactment of evidence based practices at school and classroom levels continue to impede student engagement and learning Furthermore there is a need to consider how inclusive education interfaces with the broader concepts of diversity equity and individualized learning The goal of this Research Topic is to explore these complex issues identify underlying barriers and promote strategies that can genuinely move inclusive education forward for students with SEN
