Equity Carve-outs Jörg Endres, 2002-04-08 Inhaltsangabe Abstract As especially in the 1990s corporations today still reconsider their organisational and ownership structures to become more competitive and profitable Corporate restructuring however is not a value creating mechanism per se but it can enhance corporate flexibility and focus the company on its main line of business During a restructuring process the parent firm has several options and choosing the right one in order to be successful is probably one of the most challenging tasks for the management Options can be utilised to reduce ownership through a Carve out or eliminate involvement in a Spin off or Asset Sell off A rather unknown form the Tracking Stock will also be mentioned and explained They all added a new dimension to the corporate landscape Typically the corporation's aims of restructuring are to create shareholder value In the last two decades the tendency was to strengthen the focus on its core businesses and becoming more and more a pure player in its extreme form The potential of divestiture activities during the next years will still be very high if one imagines that only in Germany the 30 DAX companies own around 4 500 subsidiaries One particularly interesting alteration of firm boundaries involves a parent firm partially divesting its ownership stake in a subsidiary via an Equity Carve out Equity Carve outs have become widely known tools for corporations that shed divisions which are no longer part of their core business Especially during the last years high growth segments with tremendous potential could be unlocked through this form of divestiture One of the main advantages for the parent is that it can still benefit from the growth of its subsidiary by selling only a portion of the new entity in an IPO Furthermore the subsidiary can gain new resources through a capital increase and operate independently Chapter two will first give an insight about the effect of diversification on firm value and then discuss various forms of restructuring such as Spin offs Equity Carve outs and Tracking stocks The aforementioned Equity Carve out is then taken into closer consideration in chapter three which discusses why and under which circumstances and motives companies may utilise this form Thereafter chapter four shows the reader how to implement an Equity Carve out Emphasis will lie on the IPO process the legal tax and accounting issues for various countries as well as on the Spin-offs and Equity Carve-outs James A. Advances in Behavioral Finance, Volume II Richard H. Thaler,2005-07-05 This book offers a definitive and wide ranging overview of developments in behavioral finance over the past ten years In 1993 the first volume provided the standard reference to this new approach in finance an approach that as editor Richard Thaler put it entertains the possibility that some of the agents in the economy behave less than fully rationally some of the time Much has changed since then Not least the bursting of the Internet bubble and the subsequent market decline further demonstrated that financial markets often fail to behave as they would if trading were truly dominated by the fully rational investors who populate financial theories Behavioral finance has made an indelible mark on areas from asset pricing to individual investor behavior to corporate finance and continues to see exciting empirical and theoretical advances Advances in Behavioral Finance Volume II constitutes the essential new resource in the field It presents twenty recent papers by leading specialists that illustrate the abiding power of behavioral finance of how specific departures from fully rational decision making by individual market agents can provide explanations of otherwise puzzling market phenomena As with the first volume it reaches beyond the world of finance to suggest powerfully the importance of pursuing behavioral approaches to other areas of economic life The contributors are Brad M Barber Nicholas Barberis Shlomo Benartzi John Y Campbell Emil M Dabora Daniel Kent Francois

Case Study International Management 2006 "Spin-Off" Stefan Vollmer, Simone Muschelknautz, Carsten Schröder, 2007-01-14 Seminar paper from the year 2006 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 1.3 University of Applied Sciences Essen course International Management language English abstract During upswing or boom phases companies tend to diversify their products and services either by acquisitions or by the foundation of subsidiaries active in different businesses As the market situation or the overall economic situations change companies have to adapt their strategy and structure to the current market If there are changes in the general market situation e.g. by the entry of new competitors companies might need to restructure to be able to compete In times of economic downturns most companies need to restructure due to economic problems and high in-house costs caused by high complexity and low transparency within the company Moreover there seems to be a change in paradigms in the market Whereas in the 60s in the US conglomerates were a prominent way to increase the company value the current market pays no premium for being a large company Since the 80s in the US and the late 90s in Western Europe shareholder value rather is increased by a focused approach on core markets and selling or spinning off the side businesses Major spin-offs were conducted in Western Europe during the recent years e.g. the spin-off of Infineon from Siemens in 1999 which was followed by a listing of Infineon at the Frankfurt Stock Exchange in 2000 the spin-off of Hypo Real Estate from HypoVereinsbank in 2003 freeing the HypoVereinsbank from their difficult real estate financing business and against the odds lead to a successful performance of Hypo Real Estate at the Stock Market⁷ or the spin-off of Lanxess from Bayer in 2005 Looking at the current development of the capital market European conglomerates seem all to work on their restructuring and on their focus on a certain area⁸ Recently announced or publicly evaluated transactions include e.g. MAN selling the majority of its printing machine division to Allianz Capital Partners Linde evaluating the sale of their forklift division Electrolux envisaging the spin-off and listing of their outdoor division in the company Husqvarna to which shareholders consented in April 2006 In the course of this paper we will evaluate the motives and value drivers of a spin-off with view on the parent company the spin-off and the capital market including investors and bondholders
