The Hidden Dimension Edward T. Hall, 1969      The Hidden Dimension Edward Twitchell Hall, 1969 An examination of various cultural concepts of space and how differences among them affect modern society Introducing the science of proxemics Hall demonstrates how man s use of space can affect personal business relations cross cultural exchanges architecture city planning and urban renewal      The Routledge Companion to the Sound of Space Emma-Kate Matthews, Jane Burry, Mark Burry, 2024-11-11 This companion explores a range of conceptual and practical relationships between sound and space across various disciplines providing insights from technical creative cultural political philosophical psychological and physiological perspectives The content spans a wide range of spatial typologies from large reverberant buildings to modest and intimate ones from external public squares to domestic interiors and from naturally formed environments to highly engineered spaces These compiled insights and observations explore the vast diversity of ways in which sonic and spatial realms interact This publication therefore forms important bridges between the intricate and diverse topics of technology philosophy composition performance and spatial design to contemplate the potential of sound and space as tools for creative expression and communication as well as for technical innovation It is hoped that by sharing these insights this book will inspire practitioners scholars and enthusiasts to incorporate new perspectives and methodologies into their own work Through a rich blend of theory practice and critical reflection this volume serves as a valuable resource for anyone interested in exploring the intricacy of relationships between space and sound whether they are students professionals or simply curious Our companion provides a cross section through shared territories between sonic and spatial disciplines from architecture engineering sound design music composition and performance urban design product design and much more      Dr. Calhoun's Mousery Lee Alan Dugatkin, 2024-10-03 A bizarre and compelling biography of a scientist and his work using rodent cities to question the potential catastrophes of human overpopulation It was the strangest of experiments What began as a utopian environment where mice had sumptuous accommodations had all the food and water they could want and were free from disease and predators turned into a mouse hell Science writer and animal behaviorist Lee Alan Dugatkin introduces readers to the peculiar work of rodent researcher John Bumpass Calhoun In this enthralling tale Dugatkin shows how an ecologist turned psychologist turned futurist became a science rock star embedded in the culture of the 1960s and 1970s As interest grew in his rodent cities Calhoun was courted by city planners and his work was reflected in everything from Tom Wolfe s hard hitting writing to the children s book Mrs Frisby and the Rats of NIMH He was invited to meetings with the Royal Society and the pope and taken seriously when he proposed a worldwide cybernetic brain a decade before others made the internet a reality Readers see how Calhoun s experiments rodent apartment complexes like Mouse Universe 25 led to his concept of behavioral sinks with real effects on public policy discussions Overpopulation in Calhoun s mouse and rat complexes led to the loss of sex drive the absence of maternal care and a class of automatons that included the beautiful ones who spent their time grooming themselves while shunning socialization Calhoun and those who followed his work saw the collapse of this mouse population as a harbinger of the ill effects of an overpopulated human world Drawing on previously unpublished archival research and interviews with Calhoun's family and former colleagues Dugatkin offers a riveting account of an intriguing scientific figure Considering Dr Calhoun's experiments he explores the changing nature of scientific research and delves into what the study of animal behavior can teach us about ourselves

The Sociology of Space Martina Löw, 2016-09-09 In this book the author develops a relational concept of space that encompasses social structure the material world of objects and bodies and the symbolic dimension of the social world Löw's guiding principle is the assumption that space emerges in the interplay between objects structures and actions Based on a critical discussion of classic theories of space Löw develops a new dynamic theory of space that accounts for the relational context in which space is constituted This innovative view on the interdependency of material social and symbolic dimensions of space also permits a new perspective on architecture and urban development

Ethics in Design and Communication Laura Scherling, Andrew DeRosa, 2020-02-20 This timely collection brings together critical analytic historical and practical studies to address what ethics means in the practice of design Designers face the same challenges as everyone else in the complex conditions of contemporary cultural life choices about consumption waste exploitation ecological damage and political problems built into the supply chains on which the global systems of inequity currently balance precariously But designers face the additional dilemma that their paid work is often entangled with promoting the same systems such critical approaches seek to redress how to reconcile this contradiction among others in seeking to chart an ethical course of action while still functioning effectively in the world Ethics in Design and Communication acknowledges the complexity of this subject matter while also demonstrating that in the ongoing struggle towards an equitable and sustainable world the talents of design and critical thought are essential Featured case studies include graphic design internships today the dark web and media coverage of the 2016 US presidential election The fact that within this book such a wide array of practitioners scholars critics and professionals commit to addressing current injustices is already a positive sign Nonetheless it is essential that we guard against confusing the coercive force of moral imperatives with ethical deliberation when conceiving a foundation for action

Understanding Social Signals: How Do We Recognize the Intentions of Others? Sebastian Loth, Jan P. De Ruiter, 2016-05-30 Powerful and economic sensors

such as high definition cameras and corresponding recognition software have become readily available e.g. for face and motion recognition. However, designing user interfaces for robots, phones and computers that facilitate a seamless, intuitive and apparently effortless communication as between humans is still highly challenging. This has shifted the focus from developing ever faster and higher resolution sensors to interpreting available sensor data for understanding social signals and recognising users' intentions. Psychologists, Ethnologists, Linguists and Sociologists have investigated social behaviour in human-human interaction. But their findings are rarely applied in the human-robot interaction domain. Instead, robot designers tend to rely on either proof of concept or machine learning based methods. In proving the concept, developers effectively demonstrate that users are able to adapt to robots deployed in the public space. Typically, an initial period of collecting human-robot interaction data is used for identifying frequently occurring problems. These are then addressed by adjusting the interaction policies on the basis of the collected data. However, the updated policies are strongly biased by the initial design of the robot and might not reflect natural, spontaneous user behaviour. In the machine learning approach, learning algorithms are used for finding a mapping between the sensor data space and a hypothesised or estimated set of intentions. However, this brute force approach ignores the possibility that some signals or modalities are superfluous or even disruptive in intention recognition. Furthermore, this method is very sensitive to peculiarities of the training data. In sum, both methods cannot reliably support natural interaction as they crucially depend on an accurate model of human intention recognition. Therefore, approaches to social robotics from engineers and computer scientists urgently have to be informed by studies of intention recognition in natural human-human communication. Combining the investigation of natural human behaviour and the design of computer and robot interfaces can significantly improve the usability of modern technology. For example, robots will be easier to use by a broad public if they can interpret the social signals that users spontaneously produce for conveying their intentions anyway. By correctly identifying and even anticipating the user's intention, the user will perceive that the system truly understands her/his needs. Vice versa, if a robot produces socially appropriate signals, it will be easier for its users to understand the robot's intentions. Furthermore, studying natural behaviour as a basis for controlling robots and other devices results in greater robustness, responsiveness and approachability. Thus, we welcome submissions that: a) investigate how relevant social signals can be identified in human behaviour; b) investigate the meaning of social signals in a specific context or task; c) identify the minimal set of intentions for describing a context or task; d) demonstrate how insights from the analysis of social behaviour can improve a robot's capabilities; or e) demonstrate how a robot can make itself more understandable to the user by producing more human-like social signals.

Landscape Architecture as Storytelling

Bob Scarfo, 2022-11-30. This book introduces students, practitioners and laypeople to a comfortable approach to learning landscape architectural design, free of design jargon and derived from their existing knowledge. A step-by-step process has readers consider their knowledge of language as metaphorically related to basic design and landscape design. Through information delivery and questioning processes readers build on what they already know their tacit understanding of language as applied to problem solving and storytelling Everyone is a storyteller Taken one step at a time through a three tiered analogy of language basic design and landscape design readers learn the makeup and role of such design features as points lines planes volumes and sequential volumetric spaces that make up their worlds With that in a sense new world view and numerous questions and examples readers begin to see that they in fact daily read the environments in which they live work play raise families and grow old Once they realize how they read their surroundings they are helped to recognize that they can build narratives into their surroundings At that point the existence of authored landscape narratives finds readers understanding a design process that relies on the designer as author landscape as text and participant user as reader That process has the reader write a first or second person narrative visually interpret the written narrative into a storyboard and turn the storyboard into a final design the physical makeup of which is read by those who participate in it
