Taylorized Citizenship:

Taylorized Citizenship Char Miller, 2001-12-30 Miller shows how government institutions changed the meaning of American citizenship during the World War II era. He considers the state's role in creating concepts of citizenship and subjectivity by analyzing the application within military and educational institutions of systems of discipline associated with Frederick W. Taylor and scientific management. Miller also explores a neglected aspect of Michel Foucault's concerns about citizenship and subjectivity when examining the power of institutions and bureaucracies in creating and precluding political identities. Of particular interest to scholars and students involved with American political history and theory and the sociology of work, education, war, and conflict. The Diary of Henry Machyn, Citizen and Merchant-taylor of London, from A.D. 1550 to A.D. 1563 Henry Machyn, 1848

American Civil Procedure John Bilyeu, Oakley, Vikram D. Amar, Vikram Amar, 2009-01-01 This convenient description of civil procedure in the federal and state courts of the United States will be greatly welcomed by lawyers and legal scholars everywhere. Without going into deep analysis, the book covers every important feature of these legal systems, drawing on the expertise and experience of two well-versed practitioners. As well as the rules, policies, normative principles, and future trends, the authors cite recent cases affecting procedure. Areas covered include sources, judicial organization, exercise of the legal profession, jurisdiction, due process standards, rules of evidence, enforcement of judgements, arbitration, and much more. Welfare, Inequality and Social Citizenship Daniel Edmiston, 2020-02-12 Exploring the lived realities of both poverty and prosperity in the UK, this book examines the material and symbolic significance of welfare, austerity, and its implications for social citizenship and inequality. The book offers a rare and vivid insight into the everyday lives, attitudes, and behaviours of the rich as well as the poor, demonstrating how those marginalised and validated by the existing welfare system make sense of the prevailing socio-political settlement and their own position within it. Through the testimonies of both affluent and deprived citizens, the book problematises dominant policy thinking surrounding the functions and limits of welfare, examining the civic attitudes and engagements of the rich and the poor to demonstrate how welfare, austerity, and rising structural inequalities secure and maintain institutional legitimacy. The book offers a timely contribution to academic and policy debates pertaining to citizenship, welfare reform, and inequality.

Canadian Club Lois Harder, 2022-10-03 Birth-based citizenship is widely considered to be the most secure claim to political belonging. Despite the general belief that liberal democracies are formed through consent, in fact, most people are members of a political community by virtue of the circumstances of their birth. In Canadian Club, Lois Harder tracks the development of Canada's Citizenship Act from its first iteration in 1947 to the provisions governing the citizenship of children born abroad to Canadian parents with the assistance of reproductive technologies. Reviewing a range of cases, Harder reveals how membership in the Canadian political community relies on norms surrounding gender, family, and sexuality, as well as presumptions regarding the constitution of authentic national identity, racial hierarchy, and the rightness of settler colonialism Canadian Club concludes with a consideration of alternative approaches to forming political communities Ultimately it asks whether birth based citizenship is the best we can do and what a more democratic and socially just alternative might look like Mediating Sexual Citizenship Anita Brady,Kellie Burns,Cristyn Davies,2017-07-06 Mediating Sexual Citizenship considers how the neoliberal imperatives of adaptation improvement and transformation that inform the shifting artistic and industrial landscape of television are increasingly indexed to performed disruptions in the norms of sexuality and gender Drawing on examples from a range of television genres quality drama reality television talk shows sitcoms and outlets network cable subscription video on demand the analysis in this book demonstrates how as one of the most dominant cultural technologies television plays a critical role in the production maintenance and potential reconfiguring of the social organisation of embodiment be it within gender identities kinship structures or the categorisation of sexual desire It suggests that in order to understand television s role in producing gendered and sexual citizenship we must pay critical attention to the significant shifts in how television is produced broadcast and consumed Citizenship In A Global Age Delanty, Gerard,2000-12-01 This book provides a comprehensive and concise overview of the main debates on citizenship and the implications of globalization It argues that citizenship is no longer defined by nationality and the nation state but has become de territorialized and fragmented into the separate discourses of rights participation responsibility and identity Citizenship, identity and immigration in the European Union Theodora Kostakopoulou,2024-07-30 European citizenship identity and immigration are constitutive issues facing the European polity and have important consequences for domestic political systems There has been a great deal published about citizenship within the setting of the nation state and comparative immigration policies but relatively little has been written on their theorisation in a post national post statist context such as the EU and on alternative European institutional designs Now available in paperback this volume blends normative political theory with European integration and develops an original theoretical framework for European Union citizenship identity and immigration as well as a set of policy proposals for institutional reform Challenging the conventionally held views in these areas the author argues that a constructive model of European citizenship and identity is vital to the construction of a democratic heterogeneous and inclusive European polity The book will appeal to academics and political actors concerned with issues of European governance as well as to undergraduate and postgraduate students of European politics European integration European Union Law political theory and sociology Citizenship Inclusion and Intellectual Disability Niklas Altermark,2017-11-09 What happens when a group traditionally defined as lacking the necessary capacities of citizenship is targeted by government programs that have made citizenship inclusion their main goal Combining theoretical perspectives of political philosophy social theory and disability studies this book untangles the current state of Western intellectual disability politics following the replacement of state institutionalisation by independent and supported living individual rights and self determination Taking its cue from Foucault s conception of biopolitics denoting the government of the individuals and the totality of the population its overarching argument is that the ambiguous positioning of people with intellectual disabilities with respect to the ideals of citizenship results in a regime of government that simultaneously includes and excludes people of this group On the one hand its members are projected to become ideal citizens via the cultivation of citizenship capacities On the other the right to live independently and by their own choices is curtailed as soon as they are seen as failing with respect to the ideals of reason and rationality Therefore coercion restraints and paternalism which were all supposed to end with deinstitutionalisation are still ingrained in services targeting the group In equal parts a theoretical work advancing debates of critical disability theory social theory and post structural philosophy as well as an empirical engagement with the history of intellectual disability politics and the ways in which present day politics target the group this book will be of interest to all students and scholars of disability studies disability politics and political theory

Citizenship, Diversity and Pluralism Alan Cairns, 1999 Citizenship has both a vertical and a horizontal dimension The vertical links individuals to the state by reinforcing the idea that it is their state that they are full members of an ongoing association that is expected to survive the passing generations Accordingly their relation to the state is not narrowly instrumental but is supported by a reservoir of loyalty and patriotism that gives legitimacy to the state The horizontal relationship is the positive identification with fellow citizens as valued members of the same civic community Here citizenship reinforces empathy and sustains solidarity through its official endorsement of who counts as one of us Citizenship therefore is a linking mechanism that in its most perfect expression binds the citizenry to the state and to each other In Citizenship Diversity and Pluralism leading scholars assess the transformation of these two dimensions of citizenship in increasingly diverse and plural modern societies both in Canada and internationally Subjects addressed include the changing ethnic demography of states social citizenship multiculturalism feminist perspectives on citizenship aboriginal nationalism identity politics and the internationalisation of human rights Alan C Cairns is adjunct professor of political science at the University of Waterloo and author of Charter versus Federalism The Dilemmas of Constitutional Reform John C Courtney is professor of political science at the University of Saskatchewan and author of Do Conventions Matter Choosing National Party Leaders in Canada Peter MacKinnon is president of the University of Saskatchewan and has served as president of both the Canadian Association of Law Teachers and the Council of Canadian Law Deans Hans J Michelmann is professor of political science and acting associate dean Academic of the College of Arts and Science at the University of Saskatchewan David E Smith is professor of political studies at the University of Saskatchewan
