Morrison, 1990 The Taste of Longing Suzanne Evans, 2020-09-21 Half a world away from her home in Manitoulin Island Ethel Mulvany is starving in Singapore's infamous Changi Prison along with hundreds of other women jailed there as POWs during the Second World War They beat back pangs of hunger by playing decadent games of make believe and writing down recipes filled with cream raisins chocolate butter cinnamon ripe fruit the unattainable ingredients of peacetime of home of memory In this novelistic immersive biography Suzanne Evans presents a truly individual account of WWII through the eyes of Ethel mercurial enterprising combative stubborn and wholly herself The Taste of Longing follows Ethel through the fall of Singapore in 1942 the years of her internment and beyond As a prisoner she devours dog biscuits and book spines befriends spiders and smugglers and endures torture and solitary confinement As a free woman back in Canada she fights to build a life for herself in the midst of trauma and burgeoning mental illness Woven with vintage recipes and transcribed tape recordings the story of Ethel and her fantastical POW Cookbook is a testament to the often overlooked strength of women in wartime It's a story of the unbreakable power of imagination generosity and pure heart The Taste of Place Amy B. Trubek, 2008-05-05 While much has been written about the concept of terroir as it relates to wine this book expands the concept into cuisine and culture more broadly Bringing together stories of people farming cooking and eating the author focuses on a series of examples ranging from shagbark hickory nuts in Wisconsin to wines from northern California The Politics of Taste in Antebellum Charleston Maurie D. McInnis, 2015-12-01 At the close of the American Revolution Charleston South Carolina was the wealthiest city in the new nation with the highest per capita wealth among whites and the largest number of enslaved residents Maurie D. McInnis explores the social political and material culture of the city to learn how and at what human cost Charleston came to be regarded as one of the most refined cities in antebellum America While other cities embraced a culture of democracy and egalitarianism wealthy Charlestonians cherished English notions of aristocracy and refinement defending slavery as a social good and encouraging the growth of southern nationalism Members of the city's merchant planter class held tight to the belief that the clothes they wore the manners they adopted and the ways they designed house lots and laid out city streets helped secure their place in social hierarchies of class and race This pursuit of refinement McInnis demonstrates was bound up with their determined efforts to control the city's African American majority She then examines slave dress mobility work spaces and leisure activities to understand how Charleston slaves negotiated their lives among the whites they served The textures of lives lived in houses yards streets and public spaces come into dramatic focus in this lavishly illustrated portrait of antebellum Charleston McInnis's innovative history of the city combines the aspirations of its would be nobility the labors of the African slaves who built and tended the town and the ambitions of its architects painters writers and civic promoters

The Taste of Water Christy Spackman, 2023-12-19 The Taste of Water explores the increasing erasure of tastes from drinking water over the twentieth century. It asks how dramatic changes in municipal water treatment have altered consumers' awareness of the environment their water comes from. Through examination of the development of sensory expertise in the United States and France over the twentieth century, this unique history uncovers the foundational role palatability has played in shaping Western water treatment processes. By focusing on the relationship between taste and the environment, Christy Spackman shows how efforts to erase unwanted tastes and smells have transformed water into a highly industrialized food product divorced from the natural environment. The Taste of Water invites readers to question their own assumptions about what water does and should naturally taste like while exposing them to the invisible but substantial sensory labor involved in creating tap water.
