Contemporary Performance and Political Economy Katerina Paramana, 2025-02-18 Contemporary Performance and Political Economy examines haunting concepts relations and artworks that demand our attention Under capitalism political and ethical considerations are subordinated to economic ones and this subordination creates ghost worlds Performance works however can offer insights into alternative politico economic models In this major contribution to the fields of contemporary performance and political economy Katerina Paramana proposes that the investigation of performance works as economies can make the insights performance works offer visible She positions the examination in relation to contemporary critiques of capitalism neo feudalism and their by products and proposes and develops the notion of oikonomia as a means to theorize artworks which through their house oikos rules nomoi propose ethico political challenges to the economies in which they are embedded For this Paramana looks at politically positioned performance works created and presented in Cuba Europe Mexico the UK and the US Her interest is in the politics ethics and effects of these works house rules and the insights they offer to the reconceptualization of political economy Ultimately this book aims to transform our understanding of economy's purpose. It contributes to the development of a new ethico-political paradigm upon which a reconceptualization of political economy can be based. This inspiring study seeks to keep the fire for change alive by demonstrating that political economies much like performances are experiments that can be changed. This work will be of great interest to students and scholars in performance studies, theatre, visual cultures, politics, cultural studies, dance, and visual arts and critical theorists.

Sculpture and the Museum Christopher R. Marshall, 2017-07-05. Sculpture and the Museum is the first in-depth examination of the varying roles and meanings assigned to sculpture in museums and galleries during the modern period from neo-classical to contemporary art practice. It considers a rich array of curatorial strategies and settings in order to examine the many reasons why sculpture has enjoyed a position of such considerable importance and complexity within the institutional framework of the museum and how changes to the museum have altered in turn the ways that we perceive the sculpture within it. In particular, the contributors consider the complex issue of how best to display sculpture across different periods and according to varying curatorial philosophies. Sculptors discussed include Canova, Rodin, Henry Moore, Flaxman, and contemporary artists such as Rebecca Horn, Rachel Whiteread, Mark Dion, and Olafur Eliasson, with a variety of museums in America, Canada, and Europe presented as case studies. Underlying all of these discussions is a concern to chart the critical importance of the acquisition, placement, and display of sculpture in museums and to explore the importance of sculptures as a forum for the expression of programmatic statements of power, prestige, and the museum's own sense of itself in relation to its audiences and its broader institutional aspirations.

Art and Thought Dana Arnold, Margaret Iversen, 2008-04-15. Art and Thought is a collection of newly commissioned essays that explores the relationship between the discipline of art history and important movements in the history of western thought. Brings together newly commissioned essays that explore the relationship between the discipline of art history and movements in the history of western thought. Considers the impact of the writings of key thinkers including Aristotle, Kant, and Heidegger on the way in which objects are perceived and understood and histories of art are constructed, deconstructed, and reconfigured according to varying sets of philosophical frameworks. Introduces the reader to the dynamic interface between philosophical reflections and art practices. Part of the New Interventions in Art History series, which is published in conjunction with the Association of Art Historians.

Museum Space Kali Tzortzi, 2016-03-09. Museums are among the iconic buildings of the twenty-first century as remarkable for their architectural diversity as for the variety of collections they display. But how does the architecture of museums affect our experience as visitors? This book proposes that by seeing space as common ground between architecture and museology and so between the museum building and its display, we can illuminate the individuality of each museum and the distinctive experience it offers. For example, how some museums create a sense of personal exploration while others are more intensely didactic, and how the visit in some cases is transformed into a spatial experience and in other cases into a more social event. The book starts with an overview of the history of museum buildings and display strategies and a discussion of theoretical and critical approaches It then focuses on specific museums as in depth case studies and uses methods of spatial analysis to look at the key design choices available to architects and curators and their effects on visitors behaviour Theoretically grounded methodologically original and richly illustrated this book will equip students researchers and professionals in the fields of architecture museum studies curating exhibition design and cultural studies with a guide for studying museums and a theoretical framework for their interpretation
