Crime, Drugs and Social Theory Chris Allen, 2017-03-02 Do criminal cultures generate drug use Crime Drugs and Social Theory critiques conventional academic and policy thinking concerning the relationship between urban deprivation crime and drug use Chris Allen outlines an innovative constructionist phenomenological perspective to explore these relationships in a new light He discusses how people living in deprived urban areas develop natural attitudes towards activities such as crime and drug use that are prevalent in the social worlds they inhabit and shows that this produces forms of articulation such as I don't know why I take drugs I just take them and drugs come naturally to me He then draws on his constructionist phenomenology to help understand the natural attitude towards crime and drugs that emerge from conditions of urban deprivation as well as the non-reasoned forms of articulation that emerge from this attitude The book argues that understanding the conditions in which drug users deviate from their natural attitude can help effective intervention in the lives of drug users
